Music Club Elects 11 To Membership

Sewanee's Music Club, in its recent membership elections, selected eleven students for membership. They are: seniors, Doug Evelt, Bruce Keenan, Henry Loutitt, Donald Porter; juniors; Bob Gore, Charles Kibling, Bill Prewitz; and sophomores Julian Beckwith, Stu Evelt, Lou Hermes, and Dick Tillinghast.

Membership in the Club is elective and is limited to twenty-five. No special musical ability is required. Members are selected on the basis of appreciation for and sincere interest in any form of music.

The purpose of the Club, founded in the spring of 1948, is the furthering of its members' musical knowledge and appreciation as the promotion of interest in good music among the students and residents of Sewanee.

Meetings, at which local musicians and related speakers are presented, are held twice a month. They are generally open to anyone who is interested.

Beginning with the sponsorship of the first Sewanee Concert Series in 1952, the club has continued to provide community wide musical programs of merit.

Last year, members helped sponsor the Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra and Chamber Ensemble. They also presented student programs of jazz, classical, and vocal music.

A full program, similar to last year's, with special concentration on the promotion of campus musical interest is on tap for this year.

Lester Lanin Plays For Homecoming

Lester Lanin and his band, popular recording stars, will play for a formal dance here, Saturday night, Oct. 17, as part of the Homecoming festivities. Bob Gregg, German Club president, stated Friday.

Phillips was 6'4" tall and weighed from 185 to 195 pounds during his athletic career. In 1904, a year counting almost three-dozen fatalities in college football, Henry Phillips was considered the toughest lineman in the South. He was also an outstanding coach and handled the line-coaching for the championship team of 1909.

After having spent the larger part of twenty years at Sewanee, where he received both his B.A. and B.D. degrees, he went to Trinity Church in Columbia, the largest Episcopal church in the diocese of Upper South Carolina. He stayed there as rector until 1938, when he was elected bishop of Southwestern Virginia. "But my best days were at Sewanee," he told his many friends.

The "Phillips House" will have four bedrooms, three baths, and solid glass walls in the living room and dining room overlooking the Ravine Garden, better known to residents as Abbot's Alley. The home stands on the old Powhatan Hall site, where Confederate Gen. Edmund Kirby-Smith once lived with his family.

Sewanee Athlete Honored By Chaplain's New House

The new sandstone chaplain's residence on University Avenue near Johnson Hall will be a memorial to one of Sewanee's greatest athletes and a former chaplain of the University.

The late Rt. Rev. Henry Dabro Phillips, Episcopal bishop of Southwestern Virginia from 1938 until 1954, succeeded his seven-year chaplaincy at Sewanee as the "most productive and successful" of his life.

The one-story, ranch-type house will be ready for Chaplain Collins, his wife, Ginny, and their three children about Nov. 1. It was authorized at the board of regent's meeting last June following a substantial personal gift from the Rt. Rev. and Mrs. Frank A. Juhn toward the estimated total cost of $35,000. Bishop Juhn was chaplain of Sewanee Military Academy during part of the time (1915-1922) that Bishop Phillips was the University chaplain.

Henry Phillips came to Sewanee in 1900, the year after the spectacular football year of 1899. Phillips played guard on five Sewanee teams (although by the rules then), and those teams won 31, lost 7, and tied 3 games, scoring 774 points to their opponents' 174, and rarely played another college which wasn't at least three times as big. Phillips was probably the only guard in American football history to score 16 touchdowns. He was frequently used on offense in the fullback spot for line backs, the play being called cloud, "Phillips' Back!" One opponent commented, "We knew what was coming but we couldn't do anything about it."

Dean Lancaster Attends Meeting

Dr. Robert Lancaster, Dean of the College, along with other representatives of 176 colleges and universities will attend the forthcoming Institution-APROTC Conference on Dec. 9 and 10 at the Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

The purpose of this meeting is to consider ways and means for strengthening and improving the AFROTC program. The plan at present is to have various speeches made by Air Force personnel, including Lt. General Walter E. Todd, Air University Commander, and by civilian institutional representatives. They will probably break up into small groups for round-table discussions. This conference is planned to help both the colleges and universities as well as the Air Force.

THE VERY REVEREND GEORGE M. ALEXANDER

Seminary Dean Declines Call To Episcopate

By JOHN GRISWOLD
On Monday of this week, the Very Rev. George M. Alexander, dean of the School of Theology, declined his election as Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of North Carolina.

In his statement refusing the post, Dean Alexander termed his election a "particularly humbling experience," but added that he felt he had "a special call to remain at my post here to aid in the preparation of young men for the ministry in Sewanee's only diocese and for the church at large."

Dr. Alexander has been dean of the Seminary since 1956. Previous to that he held rectorship in churches in South Carolina and Florida. He received degrees from the University of the South and the University of Florida, and did graduate work at the seminaries at Sewanee, and General in New York.

As Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of North Carolina he would have assisted and later succeeded the Rt. Rev. Richard Baker of Raleigh, Bishop of the Diocese.

Dean Alexander's statement in part:

Play Troupe Does 'Murder'

By DICK TILLINGHAST
T. S. Eliot's famed poetic drama, Murder in the Cathedral, which was given at Sewanee last year, will be done in Memphis Nov. 7 and 8 by a group of Sewanee players under the direction of Mrs. David Collins. Performances will be at 8 p.m. at Calvary Episcopal Church.

Cast in the lead role as Thomas a Becket will be, again this year, Chaplain Collins. Mrs. Marjory Morse has designed and made most of the costumes. Mrs. Morse, who has done the costuming for many a Purple Masque production, as well as for last year's Variety Show, was in charge of costumes for Paul Green's outdoor drama at Virginia Beach, "The Confederacy," a life of Robert E. Lee. She also supervised the costuming for the "Florida Name" pageant by Sewanee alumnus John Caldwell a few years ago.

Murder in the Cathedral, in addition to being shown here during school last year, was put on in All Saints' for the Sewanee Summer Training School, and for the American Guild of Organists at Trinity Cathedral, Little Rock, during the Guild's convention in that city.

"Every call to conscientious clergymen to go elsewhere brings also a call to remain where he is. As dean here for the past three years, I have been serving the Diocese of North Carolina and one of its four diocesan educational institutions and in the only seminary actually owned by it. By remaining here I will be continuing to serve North Carolina. The theological schools have been called the seed beds of the church. There are only a dozen of them. I feel from the bottom of my heart that the whole church needs a strong school of theology at Sewanee. The answer has seemed to come with increasing clarity that there was no choice but to decline."

Arnold Society Will Dine Fri.

The coming Friday night, Oct. 16, the Arnold Air Society at Sewanee will hold its first dinner of the year.

This is the first semi-annual dinner that the Brig. Gen. Mathew K. Deichmann Squadron of the Arnold Air Society holds each year. It will be at the Officers' Club of the Arnold Engineering Development Center at Tullahoma, Tennessee. The affair will start with a cocktail hour from six to seven. Dinner will follow at seven o'clock. The funder is for Arnold Air Society members and their dates, the staff of the Sewanee AF-ROTC unit, and the deans of the University.

The Arnold Air Society is a national air honor organization whose members are selected by a two-thirds vote of the active members of the squadron. To be eligible, a cadet must have a 2.0 average with a B in Air Science. The society is in charge of all social functions for the AF-ROTC cadets. It maintains good relations between cadets and the staff by helping them in getting to know each other.

The Deichmann Squadron participates in several national projects each year. It holds meetings monthly, usually in the home of an officer, and refreshments are served after the meeting. The squadron is headed by 2nd Lieutenant Scott Welch. Second Lieutenant Randolph Parker is the Adjutant, and A/1c Bill Griffiths is the Comptroller. Captain Batten is the staff advisor. The squadron has thirteen active members at the present time and six pledges.

FULL ACADEMIC PROCESSION winds its way from the Walsh-Eliet Cloisters to the front door of the chapel for the Founders' Day service.

Just jazz

by GRAY SMITH

Late this afternoon the student membership in the Sewanee Jazz Society was increased to fourteen by the initiation of the following students: Julian Beckwith, Stu Ewert, John Rothplet, Doug Ewert, Dusty Baker, Dick Tillingham, and Charles Kelley. Old members include Paul Alvarez (reeds), Dave Fair, Bill Lockfield, and Wilson (see-stress), Bob Gregg, Dave Gahler, and Gray Smith (pns). In addition to this undergraduate membership, there are two students from the seminary: Jack Bush and Paul Pritchitt; and five faculty members: Dr. Goodstein, Dr. Spears, Dr. Allison, Dr. Bates, and Dr. Harrison. Dr. Bates and Dr. Harrison are advisors to the Society.

Due to the completion of the necessities of formation, the internal activity of the Society will be able to realize the plans of last year. Most important of these plans is a discussion every Saturday night, which will be held in the 'Jazz Library' in the music studio. This library, which will contain both records and books as well as a hi-fi system and a tape recorder, has been made possible by the cooperation of Mr. McConnell. These discussions will consist of alternate presentations, by each member of the Society, of material pertinent to the study of one major artist or group. It is hoped that these discussions will advance the jazz education within the Society, and thus stimulate general interest on the Mountain.

Concerning concert plans for the year, there are a number of very interesting groups within a two to three hundred mile radius who have expressed a desire to play at Sewanee and whom we hope to present in several concerts throughout the year. Probably the most interesting of these groups is the new Tupper Sausy 3, featuring piano, trombone, and bass. The trombonist of this group, Paul Dienhauser, is from Holland, has studied music in this country for two years at Berkeley in Boston and at the School of Jazz in Lenox, Mass., and is featured as guest artist with The Modern Jazz Quartet on an L.P. that will be released the first part of next year.

At the present time, however, our concert plans are indefinite. Our hesitation is due to the fact that we are negotiating with the Modern Jazz Quartet for a concert. This group, as is generally known, is the most successful group in jazz and its leader, John Lewis, is highly respected in classical music circles as well as jazz music circles. The fact that we are in a position to negotiate with the Modern Jazz Quartet is due to the support of the concert-lecture fund committee. The committee, headed this year by Dr. Lockard, has some very interesting concert plans.

Dean Alexander States Reasons For Declining Bishop Position

"In spite of many compelling factors, I have concluded after much prayer and thought that I must decline the election as bishop coadjutor of the diocese of North Carolina. Every clergyman and most laymen will realize the innate difficulty of such a decision. The special circumstances of the election at Raleigh, the spirit which I am told to serve the convention, made turning away from this overwhelming and undesired honor even more difficult. It was a particularly humbling experience for me. In my life I have never been called upon to grapple with so distressing a decision.

"I was infinitely grateful for the telegrams, phone calls, and letters from kind and concerned people, supplementing the call of the convention. The task which the bishop outlined for the coadjutor, college work and missions, could not be closer to my heart. Nor was the arduous rendered easier by the knowledge that in North Carolina I would be working with a bishop whom I regard as one of the great spirits of our time and in one of the strongest and most vital dioceses.

"But I could not put aside other thoughts. Every call to a conscientious clergyman to go elsewhere brings also a call to remain where he is. I thought of the six heads this seminary has had in the past twelve years. I thought of

by DAVID JOHNSON

Although the Sewanee Military Academy is a part of the University of the South, the contrast between the seminary and the college is great. Unlike the informality of the college, the academy has an atmosphere of routine and discipline.

From Reveille at 6:00 in the morning to Taps at 10:00, the cadet's life is controlled by bugles. There are six a/c or "recitation" periods in the morning, each lasting forty-five minutes.

Because religion is considered an important segment of the cadet's life, the academy has chapel every week day, except Wednesday, following lunch.

On Sundays the corps marches to all Saints' Chapel as the band plays the sleep-wrecking Onward Christian Soldiers.

Afternoons at the academy are scheduled for various activities. On Wednesdays, students may get special help through their instructors in a special "Class Call."

Monday and Friday afternoons are reserved for athletics, while Tuesday and Thursday are delegated to military activities.

Sunday afternoon parades had been traditional at the academy until this year. The parades are now on Saturday mornings, in order to give the cadets a much-deserved free afternoon.

All of the cadets are required to participate in intramural or intercollegiate sports. The academy has teams in football, cross country, baseball, basketball, wrestling, golf, tennis, and track. In football this year, SMA has a record of three wins and one loss.

As a military preparatory school, has an Army ROTC unit. Four years of military science at the academy are equivalent to two years of Army ROTC at a university.

Included in the military life of the academy are daily inspections of rooms and the cadets' personal appearance. The major inspection of the week is held on Saturday morning, before the parade.

The academy's traditions are very closely parallel to the University's. In fact, Col. Craig Alderman, Commandant of SMA, claims that the academy is the oldest part of the University, for the first students to come to the University in 1868 were high school students.

Before 1908, the academy was known as the Sewanee Grammar School. From that time on, it has held its present name.

Gen. Josiah Gorgas was the first headmaster of SMA. Before coming to Sewanee, he had been chief of ordnance for the Confederate Army. His son, "Willie," was one of the most celebrated of all SMA or University alumni. He was Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army during the building of the Panama Canal and was instrumental in combating yellow fever there.

It has been noted that SMA, alone of all the schools of the University, has upheld consistently the Sewanee tradition of the military gentleman. In the early days of the University, all students, except townsmen (who were few then), were required to attend drill. Although the college now has its ROTC unit, for many years it had no military training.

Today the Sewanee Military Academy, with its two hundred eighty-six students, is rated with the best preparatory schools in the nation.

Alums Honor '09 Teammates

The "Champions of the South," Sewanee's fine football team of 1909, was honored on Oct. 10, last Saturday, at halftime in the Hampden-Sydney game, by the Associated Alumni.

All four living members of the remarkable twelve-man squad that humbled, among others, Georgia Tech, LSU, Auburn, and Vanderbilt, were on hand for the ceremony. They are: Blupho Frank A. Ashun, center, Eric P. Chespe-guard, both of Sewanee; Thomas A. Cox, guard, from Asheville, N. C.; and Lt. General Allan C. Gillem of Atlanta, the one-man second team, who substituted at any position. At the end of the 1909 season, Grantland Rice named his All-Southern team, and it included five players from Sewanee, and two each from Vandy, Auburn, and LSU, with Sewanee's Aubrey Lanier, "the noblest Tiger of them all," as captain of the mythical team.

Hampden-Sydney Beats Shirley's Tiger Team 35-0

by STU ELLIOTT

The Sewanee Tigers lost their second game of the season as they fell 35-0 before a strong Hampden-Sydney team. The visiting Virginians relied mainly on a crushing ground offensive as they rolled up 374 total offensive yards during the afternoon.

Bill Benson set the Tigers back right at the start when he broke over tackle and sent 55 yards on the second play from scrimmage by Hampden-Sydney. Howard Clough converted as he garnered the first of nine points he earned through placements.

Early in the second quarter Hampden-Sydney drove from their 47 to the Sewanee 10. On fourth down Clough dropped back and booted a 17-yard field goal.

Later in the second quarter Bob Rice got off a tremendous 65-yard punt for the Tigers which apparently had Hampden-Sydney bottled up near their goal. Tom Davis took the ball on his own 5-yard line and proceeded 25 yards down the sidelines in a very pivotal play. Clough added the 17th point. Sewanee was able to get to the Hampden-Sydney 25 for their deepest penetration of the game, but the visitors held; and they had a 17-0 half time advantage.

Early in the fourth quarter a 9-yard punt by Sewanee gave Hampden-Sydney the ball on the Tiger 23. Everett got 25 yards, reaching the four-yard line; but then Sewanee held, and Clough kicked his second field goal of the game, this time from the 15-yard line.

With nine minutes left to go in the same quarter, Bill Benson ran an interception back to the Sewanee 15. In four plays the visitors scored as Lewis, Everett went over from two. Tom Davis got the two point extra play with an end sweep.

The final score came after an 11-play, 83-yard drive. The touchdown came on a 6-yard Davis to Simms pass. This was the only second completion that the visitors.

Bill Benson was the game's leading rusher with 168 yards in 24 tries. Everett of the visitors got 71 yards in 14 carries. Wider was Sewanee's leading ground gainer with 20 yards in 11 attempts. Wallace Pinkley completed 5 of 10 passes for 44 yards.

Line up:

Choctaws Have New Blood, Pep

For their Homecoming game the Tigers will take on a vastly improved Mississippi College team. The Choctaws are coached this year by Hartwell MacPhail who had an impressive record at Greenville (Miss.) High School. In three years his teams won two state championships and all three squads won the northern division championship.

As is usually the case with the arrival of a new coach there are many junior college transfers. The new blood has enabled the Choctaws to establish a 3-1 record thus far. In their opener they lost 22-0 to Louisiana College. The next week however they posted a 14-7 win over Southwestern of Memphis. They followed this with a 14-6 victory over Austin College of Sherman, Texas. Last week they reached new heights as they trounced Howard 27-6. Standouts in the early games were Linus Bridges, Barry Landrum, Van Savell and Leary Therral.

by STU ELLIOTT

Hampden-Sydney came to Sewanee this year determined to avenge two disastrous losses to the Tigers. In 1957 Sewanee had handed the Virginians their only defeat in the last game of the season, and last year Sewanee spoiled the Hampden-Sydney Homecoming with a 44-20 victory. Therefore, it was a very high team that took the field last Saturday.

Bill Benson quickly showed they were a little All-American candidate by out-speeding the Sewanee secondary the first time that he carried the ball. Not only Benson but the entire Hampden-Sydney backfield possessed tremendous speed which posed an all-the-way threat on every play.

After Bill Rice got off by far his best punt of the season, when the Tigers tried to get by 10-0, it seemed that Sewanee would have the visitors in a deep hole and could climb back into the game. Then came a 95-yard run back by Tom Davis.

Clough of the Hampden-Sydney team showed very good place kicking form. He kicked the first field goals from Hardee Field in several years and was effective on all of his point-for attempts.

The passing of Wallace Pinkley and several nice runs by Frank Kinnett were the only bright spots for Sewanee. Kinnett gained 19 yards on two rushes and had one 13-yard gallop called back by a penalty.

The cross country team was scheduled to have a meet with BPT, but the Bryan squad came down with a flu epidemic. The carriers have a shortage of man power this season, but each squad member shows fine potential.

ATO's Still Lead Intramural Football

Intramural football continued its hot pace last week, only two games being won by more than two touchdowns. The ATOs picked up another win to stay on top, but the SAEs, with only a tie to mar their record, closed in. Also close to the ATOs were the Phi Gons, KAs, and Phi Delt. Each team has at least one win or tie to its credit, even the Delt's have won once. This year's league is impressive in its overall strength and the rare balance among the various teams. In addition, the officiating seems to have improved a great deal, the games are well-run and are completed quickly.

Last week's sharpest action saw the Delta lose twice by narrow scores, 2-0 to the KAs and 14-12 to the Snakes, before exploding on the Delt's 28-0. The SAEs also played excellent ball, scoring twice in each of three tilts to bring their win total to four, tops in the league.
