Brief Description of Thesis

What was the result of the missionary efforts of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church USA in Liberia, from 1821 up to 1871? What were the impacts (positive and negative) of the early missionary work on the Liberian people (natives and settlers)? Learn about how the white missionaries, black settlers and African natives interacted during the early period of missionary work in Liberia. Based on the non-collaborative method used by the early missionaries, what sort of Church was the end product of the effort? What are some important lessons that can be learned by the DFMS/PECUSA, the Episcopal Church of Liberia and churches that may be interested in doing missionary work in a foreign country? This Thesis should serve as a learning tool that will enhance the church’s work of “evangelism and mission” in the world (Missiology).
