Alumni Vote Continued Support to Sustaining Fund Campaign

Amount of $440,000
Raised on August 1

General Chairman Urges Reaching of $500,000 Goal

On Alumni Day, Saturday, June 10, Dr. Guerry, the General Chairman, reported to the alumni that the sum of $32,000 had been raised in the Sustaining Fund Campaign. Since that time subscriptions and statements of intent have been received to the amount of $8,000. This makes a total to date (August 1) of $440,000.

The minimum to be secured, therefore, is $60,000. In order that there may be some margin of safety, however, Dr. Guerry urges campaign solicitors to work for a total additional sum of at least $75,000. This figure is the objective in a continued effort to carry the campaign to a successful conclusion.

By unanimous vote at the annual meeting, the Associated Alumni expressed the conviction and the desire that the campaign be continued until the goal is reached. The alumni present were encouraged to learn that such a large sum had been raised, particularly under such difficult general conditions at home and abroad. They were determined that the campaign should go on until the sum of $500,000, the original goal, with some marginal amount was realized. The chairmen present pledged their further efforts to this end. By resolution every alumnus at the meeting promised his support to this objective.

According to the plan proposed at

Vice-Chancellor Appeals to Alumni for Help with Student Enrollment

"If every alumnus would send one student to Sewanee in every ten years, the UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH would have over three hundred applications of new students for admission each fall."

This striking statement, made by the Vice-Chancellor, challenges alumni to assist him in realizing one of his aims for Sewanee: A College of Liberal Arts with a student body of five hundred men, all qualified for college work.

"This would mean growth and, more important, the capacity for growth for Sewanee." Dr. Guerry's statement continues. "This would give a vitality to the University, a vitality that is always an essential characteristic of an institution that moves ahead.

"One student in ten years is a most reasonable undertaking for any alumnus. Certainly a Sewanee man can influence or persuade some young boy once in a while to choose Sewanee for his college training. There are a few Sewanee men who make it their duty and privilege to serve their Alma Mater in this manner. There is one alumnus who has seen to it that there is at least one student each year at Sewanee through his efforts.

"The matter of enrollment is one of Sewanee's chief problems. The UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH has not drawn students as have other institutions. An

Change in Program
Meets with Approval

The seventy-first Commencement at Sewanee will be remembered by all those so fortunate as to be present as in every respect noteworthy.

It marked the initial appearance, on such an occasion, of the new Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Alexander Guerry, who was thus concluding his first year of brilliant service. Dr. Guerry shared with the Chancellor, Bishop Mikell of Atlanta, in making beautiful and impressive the ceremonies of Commencement Day in which forty-two seniors of the College of Arts and Sciences and seven members of the Theological School received diplomas, and four honorary degrees were conferred.

The occasion was distinguished by unusually fine Commencement speakers. Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, who delivered the Commencement address, held the interested attention of his audience as he stressed the importance of a constant loyalty. Only in this way, he contended, can ideals be given their proper value in any scheme of life. Inspiring and practical, too, was the Commencement sermon preached by Bishop Clingman of Kentucky on the theme "Is Goodness Interesting?"

Another outstanding characteristic of the Commencement season was the air of confidence in the future which was universally apparent. Added was an atmosphere of goodwill which made it

Associated Alumni Annual Dues ... $3.00
 (Includes one year's subscription to the SEWANEE ALUMNI NEWS.)

Report of Annual Meeting

Nearly one hundred alumni attended the annual meeting of the Associated Alumni held at the Sewanee Union on June 10.

President Woodall spoke with gratification of the evidence of increasing interest on the part of alumni in the University as shown by the number of alumni who have made contributions and subscriptions to the Sustaining Fund and by the organization of a large number of alumni chapters.

Reports of officers were made and accepted. Minutes of the meetings of the Executive Committee held during the year, of the meeting of the Alumni Council held on the night before the general meeting, and of the general meeting held last year were read and approved.

The minutes of the Executive Committee carried the results of the election of alumni trustees. Rev. John Gass, D.D., '14, Col. H. T. Bull, '01, and Dr. Oscar N. Torian, '96, were reelected as alumni representatives on the Board of Trustees for the three-year term, July, 1939—July, 1942. Nearly sixty-two per cent of the alumni eligible to vote returned ballots.

No elections were held at the meeting except that of alumni representative on the Athletic Board of Control and Edmund Armes, '13, was reelected to that post.

The chairman of the committee appointed by the Alumni Council to draft amendments to the Constitution made a report, a digest of which is printed elsewhere in this issue.

Dr. Guerry was asked to speak about the Sustaining Fund Campaign. Among other things he said, "I want to express my very deep appreciation and grateful thanks to the members of the Associated Alumni and to the workers in the Sustaining Fund Campaign, and to the chairmen of the various committees for their loyal support and co-operation.

"It has been a very vital and important undertaking—I think one of the most important endeavors in the history of the University, and the fact that we have accomplished so much, though not all, is due to most unusual work and the spirit of fine loyalty to Sewanee and the willingness to make real sacrifices, not only in giving, but in working, on the part of so many men."

At the conclusion of Dr. Guerry's talk, a motion was passed endorsing his plans for the continuation of the campaign, and a standing vote of thanks was given him for his inspirational leadership.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution

The committee appointed by the Alumni Council at its meeting at Commencement to draft certain amendments to the Constitution of the Associated Alumni submitted a report and recommended its acceptance. It was further recommended that a committee be appointed to study during the year the problem of amendments to the Constitution and to recommend for final passage or rejection the result of their findings at the annual meeting next June. This recommendation was put in the form of a motion and passed. The amendments included in the report are as follows:

(1) That Article 4, with regard to membership in the Associated Alumni, which reads at present as follows:

Anyone eligible may become a member of the Associated Alumni by asserting the desire and paying the annual dues be changed to read as follows:

Anyone eligible may become a member of the Associated Alumni by asserting the desire and making an annual contribution to the Alumni Fund, and shall remain a member so long as he continues such annual contribution to such fund.

(2) That the words "on the Monday" be stricken from Section I of Article 6 which now reads as follows:

The regular annual meeting of this association shall be held on the Monday before Commencement Day each year so that the section would read:

The regular annual meeting of this association shall be held before Commencement Day each year.

(3) That Section I of Article 7 which is:

The Associated Alumni shall function between annual meetings and by special authority hereafter delegated in this article through an Alumni Council which shall consist of the following members:

(a) All officers of the Associated Alumni

(b) All Class Leaders

(c) The Vice-Chancellor

be amended by adding the following sub-section:

(d) The president or an elected delegate of an organized chapter of the alumni.

(4) That Article 10 which is at present:

This Constitution may be amended by the passage of the amendment at two successive meetings of the association, provided, that any amendment relative to the election of Alumni Trustees or Regents has been approved by the Board of Trustees of the UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH

be changed to read as follows:

This Constitution shall only be amended at an annual meeting of the association after ninety days' notice of such proposed amendment shall have been given to the members of the association, and they only by the approval of two-thirds of the members of the association present at such meeting and voting.

(5) That Article 2 of the By-Law which reads as follows:

The annual dues of this association shall be three ($3.00) dollars payable at, or before, the annual meeting be repealed, this action being necessary if the proposed amendment to Article 4 is adopted, and that the present Article 3, regarding the duties of officers, be made Article 2.

More Than 700 Alumni

Subscribe to Fund

In the last issue of the ALUMNI NEWS a geographical list of the alumni who had participated in the Sustaining Fund on May 1 was printed. In this issue a list by classes is given of those who had on August 1, made some contribution or subscription for this year or for the succeeding four years of the Sustaining Fund Campaign.

The total number of alumni shown on the list is 721, 695 of whom have paid or subscribed $47,445.64 for 1939. Of this amount $28,756.64 has been paid by 530 alumni. Statements of interest amounting to $36,762.50 for each of the next four years have been signed by 595 alumni.

The final list of the year—the roll of active members of the Associated Alumni for the current year—will contain the names of those alumni who have paid their subscriptions, or some part of them, for this year. This list will be published in the November issue of the ALUMNI NEWS.

Several personal appeals by letter have been sent to alumni in towns in which there is no campaign organization and it is hoped that many of them will respond. Chairmen and class leaders are urged to check up on the alumni in their towns and classes who have not yet subscribed and urge them to do so. At least one thousand alumni ought to take part in this endeavor to give Sewanee financial security.

Alumni should keep in mind the fact that contributions to the Sustaining Fund are at the same time contribution to the Alumni Fund and entitle them to membership in the Associated Alumni for the year in which they are made.

Board of Trustees Endorses Campaign

The following resolution and statement were adopted unanimously by the Board of Trustees at its June meeting and ordered by the Board to be mailed and distributed over the signatures of the Bishops who were present:

TO THE DIOCESES THAT OWN SEWANEE, TO THE ALUMNI, AND TO ALL FRIENDS OF SEWANEE:

Be it resolved, That the Board of Trustees heartily commend Dr. Alexander Guerry upon the first year of his administration as Vice-Chancellor of the University. Already his vision and practical planning are responsible for gratifying improvements in the fabric of the institution, in the content of the curriculum, and in the spirit of idealism in education for which Sewanee has always stood.

Be it further resolved, That the Board of Trustees praise the leadership of Dr. Guerry and the Board of Regents in their effort to help solve the University's financial problems by instituting the Sustaining Fund Campaign. The whole conception of the Campaign is a courageous and timely one, and the results thus far achieved of more than $432,000.00 are indicative of a tremendous interest on the part of people everywhere in Sewanee and in the future of Christian education.

We wish to express our gratitude to the alumni of the University for their splendid coöperation; to the members of this communion as well as to the friends of Sewanee, not of this communion, for their generous contributions to the cause.

However, we cannot refrain from calling to the attention of the Dioceses the fact that the Sustaining Fund is a temporary measure. Its great value lies in its ability to provide a period of relative financial security for Sewanee so that the authorities of the University may devote themselves to the building up of an endowment adequate to the University's needs.

And, inasmuch as there are still numbers of people, alumni, and friends who have not had an opportunity to make a contribution to the University at this time, we urge that the Vice-Chancellor and the Board of Regents push the Sustaining Fund to a successful conclusion, leaving no stone unturned and no possibility overlooked. In the further prosecution of this very important phase of Sewanee's existence, we, the Board of Trustees, pledge our enthusiastic coöperation.

Sigma Nu Reunion

One of the splendid features of the 1939 Commencement program was the reunion of the Beta Omicron chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding.

The two main events of the reunion program were an open house held on Sunday afternoon at the chapter house for the whole Mountain and a banquet that night at Tuckaway Inn for members of the active chapter, alumni, and visitors.

Seventy-first Commencement

a pleasure to join any group that might assemble anywhere at any time. To this atmosphere physical conditions contributed to no small extent. Never were there more perfect June days, even at Sewanee. The landscaping of the grounds, begun with the completion of the new four-lane concrete highway and continued under the Vice-Chancellor's beautification program—the grassy sod bordering the pebbled sidewalks, the attractive shrubbery at all entrances, and the fresh green lawn of the campus—contributed to furnish an ideal setting for the occasion.

The fact that more alumni than usual returned to the Mountain for the 1939 Commencement is attributed, at least in part, to the change in the Commencement program which was initiated this year. This change, which involved the compression of the whole proceedings into four days' time, proved to be highly successful and is expected to have a marked effect on succeeding Commencements. The change did not result in the loss of any of the usual activities of the season, but, on the contrary, there were even more events than heretofore. Under the new system, the alumni dinner was held on Saturday night with more alumni present than at any previous alumni banquet. Changing Alumni Day from Monday to Saturday and Commencement Day from Tuesday to Monday makes it possible for those alumni living within a reasonable distance of Sewanee to enjoy, during what is practically a week-end absence from home, the whole Commencement program, and for this reason next Commencement ought to bring a still larger number of alumni to the Mountain.

One feature that is regarded as a growing stimulus to alumni attendance at Commencement is the fraternity-reunion plan, which promises to become a permanent institution at Sewanee. Started by the S.A.E.'s last year as a gesture of welcome to the new Vice-Chancellor, and carried on by the Sigma Nu's this year in celebration of their fiftieth anniversary on the Mountain, the plan will be furthered by the A.T.O.'s next year, when they will make a special effort to bring as many of their alumni as possible back for Commencement.

Alumni who returned to Sewanee for Commencement this year were tremendously impressed and gratified by the fine hospitality which they found in Fulford Hall, the home of Vice-Chancellor and Mrs. Guerry. Beginning with the annual Vice-Chancellor's reception on Friday evening and continuing through the final German Club dances, Mrs. Guerry was the gracious hostess, entertaining group after group at meals and on other occasions.

the meeting, all chairmen who are willing to carry on will reorganize the campaign in their respective communities in the fall or winter for the soliciting of prospective contributors. According to this plan each community will assume the responsibility of securing a portion of the balance to be raised as a new quota in addition to what has already been raised. The final success of the campaign depends, therefore, upon whether or not the quotas or portions the various communities assume will be equal to the total balance to be raised.

Dr. Guerry urges every community chairman, therefore, to make plans for a continued campaign effort in the fall or winter, preferably in the fall, to secure workers for this purpose, to prepare a special list of prospective givers, and to send to the general chairman as soon as possible the estimate of the amount which will be his objective in this special effort. All alumni are urged to volunteer their services to the chairmen of their communities.

"There is no other way," Dr. Guerry reminds alumni, "by which the campaign can be successful.

"The campaign cannot fail. It must be successful. Sewanee must have, through this campaign, financial security, a balanced budget for five years, and the elimination of her floating debt. We must remember that unless the whole sum of $500,000 is raised in subscriptions and statements of intent, much that has been pledged will be lost, for a large sum has been subscribed on the condition that $500,000 be raised.

"We send a particular appeal through the pages of this issue of the ALUMNI NEWS to those alumni who live in communities in which there is no campaign organization to mail to the Vice-Chancellor's office their subscriptions and statements of intent. Such individual subscriptions are just as important as the contributions from communities in which a campaign is being carried on. Every contribution is invaluable and necessary. Let no alumnus fail to respond. It is our hope that during the summer every alumnus in a non-campaign town will mail his subscription and statement of intent to Sewanee.

"This is the picture in summary: The amount raised to date is $440,000. The objective for this summer, fall, and winter is an additional $75,000. Surely this amount will be forthcoming when so much has already been raised, when so much is at stake, when Sewanee's welfare is the purpose of all of our efforts."

Printed below is a list of the chairmen who have agreed to conduct campaigns in their communities this fall or early winter and who have expressed their willingness to help raise through reorganized and continued effort portions of the balance needed. It is hoped that as many chairmen as possible will carry on the campaign in their communities until the whole sum of $500,000 has been secured.

About Sewanee Alumni

HUNT HENDERSON, senior partner in the Henderson Sugar Refinery of New Orleans, La., died of a heart attack on June 21. He had been associated with the sugar business since leaving college. Collecting works of art was Mr. Henderson's lifelong hobby and his collection, particularly of works of modern French art, was recognized by critics as one of the best in the South. In his collection also were many of Whistler's etchings and paintings, some of which were exhibited in the Sewanee Art Gallery last fall.

overflowing enrollment would be one of the greatest things that could possibly happen to Sewanee. An excess of applications over accommodations would mean everything to this University, certainly a finer institution with greater prestige, certainly greater resources because men and women are attracted to give to a college that attracts students.

"A college can grow only through its student body and its former students. There is no secret or miracle to growth. It depends upon the enthusiasm and help of those who are or were a part of the institution. An overflowing enrollment can be brought about for this University. This is an objective towards which everyone can work. It requires only the interest and effort of Sewanee men.

"We ask, therefore, of you, our alumni, your assistance for the term which opens in September and we beg of you this favor: See personally the graduates of high school and preparatory school in your communities and persuade them to attend Sewanee. Your influence can be the deciding factor. Send us the names of prospective students and we will help in every way possible, but what we can do by mail is not comparable to what Sewanee men can accomplish by personal contact."

Colonel Williams Awarded Loving Cup for Civic Work

The Loving Cup Committee of The Times-Picayune, newspaper of New Orleans, Louisiana, awarded last June The Times-Picayune Loving Cup for 1937 to Colonel L. Kemper Williams, '08. The Committee's statement regarding the award says that it was made in recognition of Colonel Williams' "continued and unselfish service to the city of New Orleans, performed without thought of personal benefit and for which he received no material remuneration, and in particular for his outstanding service as chairman of the New Orleans housing authority" and that he has also been "closely identified with other projects, movements, and activities which have been directed toward improving the civic standards of his community for more ample life and happiness afforded his fellow citizens."

Colonel Williams has been engaged in the lumber manufacturing business since leaving college. He is president of the F. B. Williams Cypress Company, Ltd., and vice-president of Williams, Inc. He has also been identified with various other banking and industrial enterprises.

In 1935, the University awarded Colonel Williams the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law for his "devoted and generous service to the University of the South and especially for his work as chairman of the Committee on Finance and Endowment." He has been a member of the Board of Regents and of the Board of Trustees of the University for several years.

Sewanee Alumni News

University of the South
Sewanee, Tennessee

SEWANEE ALUMNI NEWS, issued quarterly by the Associated Alumni of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. Entered as second-class matter May 25, 1934, at the postoffice at Sewanee, Tenn., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

University Makes Marked Progress During the Past Year

Fiscal Year Ends

Without Deficit

Enrollment Increased, Grounds and Buildings Improved

So often a year, when it has passed, is judged to be "just another year." On the other hand, there comes an occasional year, marked by such definite and obvious progress that it stands forth as a year of extreme significance. Through such a year Sewanee has just passed.

Sewanee has always been beautiful, but in the last year Sewanee, the beautiful has become Sewanee, the more beautiful. The campus and the grounds have been greatly improved. Grass and shrubbery have been planted, walks and roads have been built. The village, which has been largely remade, is scarcely recognizable. Houses have been painted, drains have been dug, and fences have been removed or repaired. Sewanee as a community as well as a college is reaching towards its objective of being the most beautiful community and the most beautiful college in the South.

A critical question has often presented itself to thoughtful Sewanee people: "Has Sewanee the capacity for growth and the vitality that comes from growth?" Other institutions have grown but Sewanee's enrollment seemed to remain static. A glance at the enrollment statistics for the past three years answers this question in a manner that is most encouraging. In the fall of 1937, the enrollment in the College was 219; in the Theological School, 19; and in the Academy, 119. In the fall of 1938 the enrollment in the College was 251;

Alumni Organize to Complete Campaign

General Education Board

Makes Grant of $25,000 for Science Department

On October 20 the secretary of the General Education Board of New York City notified the Vice-Chancellor of the University that the General Education Board had voted a grant of $25,000 to the University for equipment and apparatus for the Department of Science and for the improvement of the Science Building.

The significance of this gift to Sewanee cannot be overestimated. The Science Department of the College will be among the best equipped departments in the South. The finest possible facilities and accommodations will be afforded the students at Sewanee for the study of science. The merit and importance of Sewanee as an institution of learning will be enhanced. The level of academic opportunity and academic achievement will be raised.

One important condition is attached to this gift. The Sustaining Fund Campaign must be completed. The sum of

Fund Nears Goal,

$60,000 Needed

"The alumni are putting their shoulders to the wheel to complete the Sustaining Fund Campaign," Vice-Chancellor Alexander Guerry said after his return from one of several trips in behalf of the Sustaining Fund.

"Many groups under the leadership of their chairmen have made their plans, secured workers, prepared their lists of prospective contributors, and fixed definite dates for beginning and ending their soliciting," Dr. Guerry, General Chairman of the campaign, continued. "Some chairmen and their committees are already at work. All these facts are very encouraging.

"On the other hand, there is the disappointing factor that some chairmen who agreed to continue the campaign in their communities have not set a date of campaign, have not made any definite plans, and have not named any quota as their share of the $60,000 needed to bring the campaign from its present mark of $40,000 to its goal of $500,000.

The uncertainty and delay are very discouraging. Every chairman and every committee that have committed themselves to a continued effort this fall and winter ought to set a quota, determine upon a date, and commence in earnest their preparations for an effective campaign.

"A critical difficulty right now is the fact that the quotas assumed by the communities which are engaged in the continued campaign do not add up to $60,000. This balance of $60,000 cannot be obtained unless additional communities through their old

Gordon Clark Resigns

In September, Gordon M. Clark resigned the post of Organizing Secretary of the Associated Alumni in order to devote his full time, as Athletic Director, to the development of the athletic program of the University. Mr. Clark has held both positions since 1930.

Professor Henry M. Gass of the University faculty has accepted the appointment of President Harding Woodall to serve as the acting Organizing Secretary. Major Gass, a member of the Class of 1907, has had a long association with the University and is well-fitted for this position. The association is fortunate in having his services in this capacity.

In his nine years of office, Mr. Clark has rendered a faithful and valuable service to the Associated Alumni. The Alumni News, its official organ, was instituted in his administration. Increasing emphasis has been laid on the class organization, through which there has been effected a growing coherence and sense of responsibility on the part of Sewanee's widely scattered alumni. Membership in the association has, at the same time, grown steadily until in 1939 it reached a peak of 615. An efficient office has been set up in which the work of compiling the records and the addresses of the alumni progresses steadily.

With deep regret, Mr. Clark, we announce your resignation, and in the name of Sewanee and the alumni we thank you for a fine piece of work.

THE VICE-CHANCELLOR

Elsewhere in these pages appear statements that must bring cheer to the hearts of alumni and friends of Sewanee everywhere. One reads of the Sustaining Fund nearing its goal, of a gift of $25,000 to the Science Department, of greatly improved buildings and equipment, of a beautiful campus, of notably increased enrollment. These are tangible evidences of the advances achieved in one year of office by Vice-Chancellor Alexander Guerry.

As important as are these concrete gains, more heartening still is the contagious spirit which permeates the very atmosphere of the Mountain. One is conscious of a surge of hope, nay, of assurance, that those fine dreams, never abandoned but at times seemingly so remote, are on the verge of realization. With an awakened zeal and a certainty born of conviction, one and all, from the youngest freshman to the senior member of the faculty, go about daily tasks and look serenely ahead.

Out from our Mountain has spread the hope; the alumni, too, have been moved. It is no small achievement that, almost entirely through alumni solicitation and in no small part through alumni generosity, the campaign for the Sustaining Fund is nearing completion. This great sum, $500,000, is being sought and secured under the hardest conditions possible, for the meeting of deficits and the paying of debts. Nothing short of an inspired effort could win such a victory.

These spiritual victories, as well as the tangible ones, are to be credited to the Vice-Chancellor. It is but fitting, therefore, that we, in the name of Sewanee men everywhere, pay him some tribute for his dynamic leadership. These results have not been easily accomplished. They are the product of effort, of thought, of labor that it would be difficult to measure. Dr. Guerry has brought to his task tireless zeal, great ability, broad vision, and above all, whole-hearted consecration, and dauntless faith. His irresistible conviction has moved everyone with whom he has come in contact. He cannot fail because he does not know what failure means.

Three alumni representatives on the Board of Trustees (two lay and one clerical) must be nominated by the Associated Alumni to the Board of Trustees at the June meeting of the Board.

Any member of the Associated Alumni who wishes to nominate candidates for these offices should write the members of the following nominating committee:

Charles Edward Thomas, 3805 Locust St., Philadelphia, Pa.

GORDON M. CLARK, '27

J. Albert Woods, 120 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

This committee will notify the Organizing Secretary of its nominees on or before March 15. The Organizing Secretary will mail ballots to all members of the Associated Alumni for the past year by April 1. The polls will close on June 1.

Alumni Fund Increased by $17,460.70 Over Last Year

Alumni giving to the University this year has been stimulated by the Sustaining Fund Campaign. There has been only one appeal. Alumni dues have been suspended, contributions to the Sustaining Fund being both the basis for membership in the Associated Alumni and contributions to the Alumni Fund.

For the year just closed, 615 alumni gave $41,651.49 to the University, an increase of 70 givers and of $17,460.70 in amount given over the preceding year.

Subscriptions and statements of intent to give to the Sustaining Fund have been signed by 760 alumni. Of the alumni making subscriptions for 1939, 112 have as yet made no payment. The total amount subscribed for 1939 was $49,087.49, $41,651.49 of which has been paid. Statements of intent to give $37,223.50 for each of the next four years have been signed by 602 alumni.

While we are pleased with the response that 615 alumni have made to the call of the University this year, we are not satisfied to have no response from many others. We hoped for a membership list of at least one thousand Sewanee men, one thousand men to show some tangible evidence of their loyalty to Sewanee and their faith in her future. Sewanee men have reason to support Sewanee both because of what they owe her and because she is altogether worth supporting.

This is Tiger Day in Nashville
I'll never forget the first Vanderbilt-Sewanee game I saw...
Thanksgiving, 1902.
Slipped past "Cap" Alley and under the canvas on old Dudley Field.
Wasn't big as a mosquito, so wasn't hard to do.
Sewanee won—11-5.

Vanderbilt meds had paraded with skeleton in casket.
Skeleton wrapped in purple and white.
Made no difference to the Tiger.
He went to town.
When the game ended, John Edger-ton and Huldý Davis hung on one another's shoulders.
Clung to one of the goal posts.
And cried like babies.
You don't forget those things.

Many a Tiger team has come down from the Mountain since then.
I've seen most of them.
Most of them defeated for the past quarter century.
But all of them scrappers.

Jenks Gillem—how he could boot that ball!
"Chigger" Browne,—an early Rabbit Curry.
Phillips, Stone, Lanier, Juhan.
Brawny Frank Faulkinberry.
Tolley, Coughlan, Harris.
Yes, sir.
They've had some good ones up on the Mountain.

I've seen the day I'd cry if Sewanee whipped Vanderbilt.
I'd almost cry for joy if they won once in a while.
I don't mind getting licked by that crowd now and then.
I might weep before nightfall.
Who knows?

But while Sewanee has had great football teams,
I like to think of her as an institution.
A real Southern institution.
One that stands for something worth-while.
One that has clung to ideals when others were giving them up.
One that has struggled for its very existence.
One that has met adversity.
Discouragement.
Reverse.
But under able Alex Guerry, Sewanee is coming out of it all with that same high spirit,

That courage,
That determination,
That devotion to principle,
That characterizes most of her alum-ni.

Sewanee has made a very definite contribution—
To Tennessee,
To the South,
To the Nation.
A great institution likes to recall the achievement of her greatest sons.
Sewanee takes pride in her Gorgas, her Grayson, her Butt.
Rightly so in her Gailor, her Polk, her Manning, her Quintard.
And many more.

But I prefer to think of Sewanee in her larger relationship to the country—
Through the thousands of her sons, less prominent, perhaps,
But nonetheless serving wherever they are.
I know lots of them.
Many of them right here in Nash-ville.
Men like Vernon Tupper, as tireless, unselfish and civic spirited a man as ever walked these streets for worthy causes.

Men who forget self in the service of others.
Men in business.
In industry.
In the professions.
Giving of themselves in the making of an orderly society.
Pouring out their energies and talents that the world might be better because they have passed this way.
They are the fellows who have made Sewanee great.

The Tiger football team may not win many football games,
But Sewanee is planted firmly on that mountain top to stay,
So long as she continues to justify her existence,
By turning out MEN—
Men who can stand on their feet and take it.
Men who are unafraid to uphold the things that count most in life.
Men willing to give of self and sub-stance for others.
Men with that old-time Sewanee spirit.
Southern men.
Sportsmen.
Gentlemen.
Sewanee men.

I'd like to see them win more often.
But win, lose or draw,
I'll stand and shout with the lustiest freshman from the Mountain—
"Yea a a a a a a a a a, Sewaneeeee's RIGHT!"
And I'm a Vanderbilt man.
Yes, sir!

Alumni and the Student Enrollment Problem

Colleges have many problems and they naturally turn to alumni for help with the solving of them. One of the most vital of them all is one with which every alumnus can be of help: the problem of enrollment.

One distinguished alumnus boasts the proud record that every year since leaving Sewanee more than twenty-five years ago, he has been represented by one or more students on the Mountaintain. At present he has a son in the Academy and a son in the College.

Statistics gathered from questionnaires filled out by the 122 new students who enrolled in the College in September show that fifty-two of them are at Sewanee because of alumni influence. Twenty-seven of these new men followed to Sewanee relatives who were Sewanee students in other years and twenty-five were influenced to come by Sewanee men who are not relatives.

Many students in the past have come to Sewanee because of family connections and it seems that a never-failing succession of grandsons, sons, nephews, cousins, and brothers has begun to walk in the footsteps of relatives who were at Sewanee in the years gone by. May their tribe increase and may alumni increase their efforts to influence high-school graduates who are not relatives Sewanee-ward.

The new students who are grandsons, sons, brothers, nephews, and cousins of Sewanee men and their alumni kinsmen are as follows:

General Education Board Makes Grant of $25,000

$500,000 must be raised in subscriptions and statements of intent before Sewanee can receive this grant from the General Education Board.

Dr. Guerry, in commenting on the gift, said: "This grant presents an additional and compelling reason for reaching the goal in the campaign for a Sustaining Fund. Sewanee cannot lose this opportunity for improved science facilities and accommodations."

Sewanee Alumni in Who's Who in America

A recent inquiry regarding the number of Sewanee men in Who's Who in America resulted in the discovery that almost one hundred former students of the University have been listed in that famous volume. Part of the letter of inquiry follows: "Some years ago there was a good deal of reference to Sewanee's having an especially large representation in Who's Who. In fact I think it was said that in proportion to its numbers it had a larger representation than any other American college." It is impossible for us to tell whether or not this statement is correct as statistics for checking it are not available. A great deal would depend upon the basis of comparison which was used.

Fifty-one of the ninety-eight Sewanee men who have been listed in Who's Who hold degrees given by the University and nineteen of the non-graduates attended no other school. Nine others did their undergraduate work at Sewanee, transferring elsewhere for professional work.

The list of those alumni who are known to have appeared in Who's Who is printed below. It may not be complete and if alumni know of any names which have been omitted from it, the Alumni Office would appreciate being informed about them.

University Shows Marked Progress in Past Year in the Theological School, 16; and in the Academy, 172. In the fall of 1939 the enrollment in the College is 290; in the Theological School, 25; and in the Academy, 192. The increase in the College enrollment in two years has been 71 students, an increase of 32 per cent. The University is today experiencing a capacity enrollment. Any considerable further increase in enrollment will demand new living accommodations.

Again, Sewanee has been harassed throughout the years by the accumulation of debts arising from unbalanced budgets and the pressure has at times been critical. For the fiscal year ending August 31, 1939, there was no deficit, no accounts payable by August 31. In addition, the University reduced its floating indebtedness last year by the sum of $55,000.

There are other encouraging indications of progress. The entire physical plant of the University has been renovated or remodeled. The buildings and equipment are in excellent condition and of most attractive appearance inside as well as outside.

The recreational facilities of the University have been improved and extended. The golf course has been developed, new tennis courts have been built, and the two gymnasiums have been remodeled and supplied with new equipment. The track is being rebuilt.

The library is showing the effects of a grant of $15,000 made by the General Education Board in 1938 for the purchase of books. The gift, payable $5,000 a year over a period of three years, is making possible the addition of many new volumes to the library and greatly improved library facilities.

Most of this progress is both the result and the justification of the great effort and the great achievement of the year, the campaign for the Sustaining Fund. If this campaign is brought to a successful conclusion and if the subscriptions for the next four years are paid in the same manner as for the past year, the University may look forward to recurring years without a deficit and with all bills paid, to the liquidation of all of its floating indebtedness, to a long cycle of equal if not greater progress.

chairmen or new chairmen signify their willingness to enter the campaign and take some portion of the $60,000.

"This campaign for $500,000 to give Sewanee financial security and the opportunity for growth and development is one of the most vital undertakings in the history of the University of the South. Its success is essential. Every Sewanee man and every friend of Sewanee should lend a helping hand. The work and generosity of each are indispensable."

Dr. Guerry is this fall visiting alumni groups in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Nashville, Atlanta, Tampa, Miami, Charleston, Columbia, New Orleans, Houston, Dallas, Austin, and Memphis. His report to alumni in the cities he has visited on the progress the University is making has received an enthusiastic response.

A list of communities and chairmen that had indicated their willingness to participate in the final campaign was published in the last issue of the Alumni News. Since that time other cities and chairmen have pledged their active cooperation. The complete list to date is as follows:

Govan and Davidson Join University Staff

Two men were added to the University staff this year. Dr. Thomas P. Govan was appointed as Assistant Professor of Government. He is also teaching one course in the Department of History. John S. Davidson, '30, as Assistant Librarian, is filling the place vacated by I. H. Hodges, who is completing the work for his doctor's degree at Vanderbilt University.

Dr. Govan holds degrees from Georgia School of Technology, Emory University, and Vanderbilt University. In 1937 he was awarded a Julius Rosenwald Research Fellowship to study the credit system in cotton trade. He continued this research in England during the past summer. He has been a member of the faculty of Emory University and of the University of Chattanooga.

After graduating from the University, Mr. Davidson went to Syracuse University where he received an M.A. degree in English and a B.S. degree in Library Science. He has been a member of the English Department at Syracuse for several years.

THE SEWANEE ART GALLERY opened its second season with another local artists' exhibit on October 17. The exhibit was composed of forty-five paintings produced by twenty-nine local artists during the past year. The gallery talk was made by Mr. Karl Kershaw, director of the Tennessee Art Project, who commended Sewanee's program for the encouragement of art. The second exhibit of the year was held on November 1 and consisted of a collection of pastels and oils done by Mr. Brantley Smith, well-known Tennessee artist, who made the gallery talk.

DR. THOMAS P. GOVAN

MRS. PERCY CUNNINGHAM

University Loses Beloved Matron of Hoffman Hall

Mrs. Percy Cunningham, matron of Hoffman Hall since 1921, died on November 7 after an illness of several weeks. She had lived in Sewanee since 1912 when her husband took the post of bookkeeper at the University Supply Store. Upon the death of Mr. Cunningham, who was an alumnus of the Class of 1886, she became matron of Hoffman Hall. Her only son, George Cunningham, of Memphis, is a member of the Class of 1927.

Mrs. Cunningham was familiarly known as "Miss Robbie" by many generations of Sewanee men. The following is a part of a letter of tribute written to the editor of the Purple by one of her boys, Gus Graydon, '37:

"I always like to think of Sewanee as I knew it—I suppose every Sewanee man does. I learned to love Sewanee through the stories and lore told me by the matron of Hoffman Hall, the late Mrs. Percy Cunningham, or 'Miss Robbie,' as we called her.

"The thing which perhaps seemed most important during our years at Sewanee was the study of history, the great works of literature, philosophy, science, economics, languages—and yes, the football teams and dances. But the things that make Sewanee stand apart are the little everyday contacts which, after all, make 'village' life the most satisfying that America has to offer. And the everyday life of Sewanee revolves around those fine ladies who live in Sewanee's dormitories—darning the boys' socks in a pinch, chatting with the boys at the day's end, chaperoning their parties and talking with their girls, and putting up with the racket and pranks of those living in the dormitories. . . .

"'Miss Robbie' will be missed greatly at Sewanee in the future, but her influence will be felt for many years to come in the lives of Sewanee men who have been helped in their goal of becoming true gentlemen by this Sewanee lady."

THE DUBOSE HOUSE near All Saints' Chapel was destroyed by fire on November 12. The house was built by Dr. William Porcher DuBose when he came to Sewanee as chaplain in 1871 and has been the home of his daughters, Misses Sue and May DuBose, since his death in 1918.

Col. Reynolds Resigns Post at Supply Store

Colonel James H. Reynolds has resigned his position as general manager of the University Supply Store, and will shortly leave Sewanee to make his home in Florida. Colonel Reynolds came to Sewanee four years ago and during that time he has made many friends. Under his efficient management the Supply Store has taken many forward steps. Colonel Reynolds has also been very active in civic affairs as a member and officer of the Civitan Club and as chairman of the local chapter of the American Red Cross. With his unusual ability as an illustrator and cartoonist he has made a great contribution to the Supply Store and to many other organizations on the campus.

EIGHT FRATERNITIES pledged 89 men at the end of the rush period in September. Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon led with 16 pledges each. Alpha Tau Omega has 14 pledges and one transfer. Sigma Nu rates third with 12 pledges, followed by Delta Tau Delta with 11. Phi Gamma Delta has 10 new men, Kappa Sigma 6, and Kappa Alpha 4.

A MEMORIAL to General Edmund Kirby-Smith is being built by the United Daughters of the Confederacy on the plot of ground between the Monteagle Road and the Sigma Nu house. The memorial consists of a large, semicircular bench constructed of cut sandstone and a shaft seven feet high made of smooth sandstone, the shaft being placed at the center of the semicircle formed by the bench. On the shaft will be placed a bronze plaque bearing an inscription regarding the famous Confederate general.

JOHN S. DAVIDSON, '30

VARSITY FOOTBALL SEASON

BY BOB SEIBELS, '40

The largest squad Sewanee has seen in many years, thirty-five men, reported to Head Coach "Hec" Clark on the first of September. Coach Hec's last year as the Sewanee mentor began most favorably. His optimism at the beginning of the year was more than justified by the showing of the team, the season being the best the Tigers have had since 1931. For the first time in several years a captain, Arthur Whittington, senior from Birmingham, and an alternate captain, Jim Thomas, senior from Selma, Alabama, were elected before the season began. The inspiration furnished by these two men had not a little to do with the team's success.

The first game of the season for the Tigers took place at Lexington, Virginia, with Washington and Lee on September 30. A confident Sewanee team was turned back by the Generals 9 to 0 on a soupy field in a game totally devoid of sensationalism.

The following week's work emphasized offense in the hope of capitalizing on any breaks which might occur in the battle with Tennessee. The threat of a fast scatback's getting loose was deemed more advantageous to Sewanee's chances than a vain endeavor to create a brick wall of defense in so short a time. A 40 to 0 landslide for the Vols could not completely discredit Coach Hec's reasoning.

The Tigers took full advantage of their second opportunity to claw out a victory by turning aside Tennessee Tech's Eagles 9 to 7 on October 20. Though the score indicates a close margin, in truth the Tigers dictated the play for three quarters and were scored on only after a supreme effort by T. P. I. in the fourth period.

On October 27 the Purple squad surprised Memphians by scoring a 6 to 0 win over Southwestern who was slightly favored to carry off the wreath. Arthur Cranman, 185-pound end, snagged a Lynx pass on Southwestern's 20-yard line and scored standing up. All Lynx efforts were unavailing in the face of the outstanding defense work of Captain Arthur Whittington at center and Quarterback Bob Macon, two of the best line backers seen on the Mountain in years.

Coach Hec's boys lost a heartbreaker to the University of Chattanooga on November 4 by a 10 to 7 count. Earl Bearden caught "Sandy" Sandifer's pass on the Moccasin's 20-yard line, wormed and drove his way through several tacklers, and carried two of them over the goal line with him. Sandifer's place kick was good. In the third quarter, Chattanooga put on a touchdown march which culminated in a tally from Sewanee's five-yard line as the result of a beautifully timed and perfectly executed triple reverse. Chattanooga had scored its first touchdown against Sewanee in nearly thirty years of intercollegiate football competition! The try for the extra point was good and the score stood at 7-all. Towards the end of the final period, Chattanooga put the game on ice with a field

HARRY E. CLARK, '18

"Hec" Clark's Resignation Received with Regret

The resignation of Sewanee's Football Coach, Harry E. Clark, recently made public, has been received with genuine regret by followers of Sewanee's football teams here on the Mountain and throughout the nation.

Mr. Clark will take the managership of the University Supply Store, the vacancy being created by the resignation of Colonel James H. Reynolds. For several years Coach Clark has also been assistant general manager of the Supply Store.

"Hec" Clark entered Sewanee as a freshman in 1914 and played on the strong Tiger elevens of 1914, 1915, and 1916. In 1917, he enlisted for service in the World War with the Sewanee Ambulance Unit. He returned to his Alma Mater in 1919 and played his last year of football. In 1922, he was called to serve as Freshman Coach, a position which he held until he was appointed Head Coach in 1931.

In the years since 1931, football as played by Sewanee—the football of the amateur, the football of the spirit—has given way to the football of the professional, the football of power. The odds have been too great for Sewanee. Each year has proved more difficult, more trying, and victory has been turned into defeat. In these years, no one has felt the pressure more, no one has fought a braver fight, no one has shown a finer spirit than "Hec" Clark. Sewanee men everywhere join with all true lovers of the game of football in paying tribute to "Hec" Clark, as a Coach, as a fine gentleman, as a true Sewanee sportsman.

goal from Sewanee's 25-yard line and frustrated every subsequent Tiger bid for the winning touchdown.

With their spirits dampened somewhat by the Chattanooga setback, Sewanee Tigers journeyed down to Nashville on November 11, only to meet a galling 25 to 7 defeat at the hands of this year's weakened Vanderbilt Commodores. Sandifer's punt return of forty yards was easily the most notable feat of the game. The only redeeming feature of the Tigers' playing was the fact that they scored on Vandy for the first time since 1933. Sewanee had not a little to do with her own defeat, fumbling seven or eight times in the course of the game.

In an inter-conference clash at Charleston, South Carolina, on November 18, the Purple Tigers showed plenty of fight and determination by clawing the tough Citadel Bulldog 14 to 7 in a game packed with passing thrills. Earl Bearden, diminutive full-back who weighs only 155 pounds, accounted for 13 of Sewanee's 14 points by making both touchdowns and kicking one extra point. The Tigers' vastly improved blocking opened wide holes in the Bulldog line through which raced scatbacks George Glover, Bearden, and Sandifer.

The Citadel game was the last win of the season for the Tigers who went down to New Orleans on November 25 to be snowed under by Tulane 52 to 0. The most thrilling play of the game was Sandifer's return of the opening kickoff from behind his own goal line to the Tulane 26-yard line, an 83-yard jaunt.

An outstanding characteristic of this year's Sewanee squad has been its unflagging pep even in the wake of such defeats as those handed out by Tennessee and Tulane. The Sewanee football spirit, so often talked about, is on the upgrade as Sewanee's football star is again in the ascendancy. Next year, with a number of experienced juniors returning and with a schedule of teams more in her own class, Sewanee ought to win most of her games.

Freshman Football

The freshman football team experienced a fairly successful season with one win, one tie, and one loss. The T. P. I. freshmen were defeated 27-6, the Vanderbilt team won a close game 6-0, and the game with the Chattanooga freshmen resulted in a 6-6 tie. The Chattanooga game was played in a blinding snow storm. Hardee Field was covered with several inches of snow which made the lines invisible. The players could scarcely be seen from the sidelines.

Five of the nineteen men on the squad had never played football before. The squad list is as follows:

BUST OF DR. LEGRAND GUERRY, '94

Dr. LeGrand Guerry Honored by Friends in Columbia

Friends and admirers of Dr. LeGrand Guerry, '94, of Columbia, South Carolina, raised funds to make the bust of the internationally known surgeon shown above. The bust was done by Nison Tregor, a Russian sculptor. It has been placed in the lobby of the Columbia hospital where Dr. Guerry has done a great part of his work.

At the dedication exercises in the early part of the summer, several hundred of Dr. Guerry's friends gathered to pay him tribute. The speaker was Dr. Reed Smith of the University of South Carolina.

"As a serious student and scientific investigator of surgery, he has made original and valuable contributions to his field," Dr. Smith said. "More than thirty articles from his pen have appeared in the medical journals of this country, some of which have been translated and published in other countries."

John Whitaker Publishes Book on South America

John T. Whitaker, '27, foreign correspondent of the Chicago Daily News now stationed in Rome, published his second book, Americas to the South, during the past summer. After seven years' work as a reporter in Europe Mr. Whitaker went to South America to cover for his paper the Eighth Pan-American Conference and the political situation in the Latin American countries, chiefly because of the interest exhibited in these nations by the totalitarian powers, particularly Germany. He attended the conference at Lima and then traveled through Mexico, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, and Brazil, talking to government officials, opposition leaders, American business men, and other men in various occupations.

Concerning Mr. Whitaker's book, T. R. Ybarra, writing in the New York Times, says, "Everywhere he studied the local situation with thoroughness; everywhere he sought to unravel its intricacies; everywhere he grappled manfully with the contrast and contradictions which make up so much of South America, seeking to transmute them into words which could carry to readers an understanding of the problems with which South Americans—and North Americans who deal with them—are confronted, all the way from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn. . . . Mr. Whitaker has done a good job. His pages constantly reflect unremitting industry and honest endeavor to arrive at the truth."

While less dramatic than his first book, which was concerned with his early experiences in Geneva and with the Ethiopian war, Mr. Whitaker's present work is probably of more immediate concern to American readers. He calls for a reconsideration of our whole policy in regard to South America, economic, political, and military. He insists that Americans of the north should know more about the inhabitants of the southern continent. Mr. Whitaker's book is a timely contribution to a clearer general understanding of the Americas to the South.

Sewanee Alumni News

University of the South

Sewanee, Tennessee

SEWANEE ALUMNI NEWS, issued quarterly by the Associated Alumni of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. Entered as second-class matter May 25, 1934, at the postoffice at Sewanee, Tenn., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Campaign for Sustaining Fund Completed April First Vice-Chancellor Speaks Through These Columns to Alumni

A Great Victory for Sewanee Implications of the Campaign Achievement Faces the Future

The Sustaining Fund Campaign was an Alumni campaign, a great Alumni undertaking. Sewanee men, with one exception, were the chairmen and leaders in the cities which participated in the Campaign. Sewanee men, with few exceptions, were the workers or solicitors. There was no paid professional organization, not a single paid professional assistant.

The Campaign was launched and carried on under the most difficult circumstances and trying conditions. The economic depression continued to hold our country still in the grip of the serious problems of unemployment, rising cost of living, government, industrial strife, and agricultural maladjustment. Then the war in Europe broke upon the world to the dismay of all men's hearts everywhere with fear and sometimes with despair. Finally, the purpose of the Campaign was to obtain funds to pay off the paing debt and wipe out annual deficits, and debt and deficits were the two least appealing objectives, actual or imaginable.

Yet the Sustaining Fund Campaign has brought to a successful conclusion on April 1st. The sum of $503,685.00 has been raised in subscriptions and statements of intent, payable over a five-year period. This has been accomplished at a cost of $12,000.00, less an two and one-half percent, instead of the almost universal cost of ten or fifteen percent for such campaigns.

What a remarkable achievement for

Almost as important as the success of the Campaign has been the establishing or strengthening of certain fundamental policies or principles definitely and, it is hoped, permanently for the UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH. Before the Campaign was launched the University went on record explicitly that the institution would operate within its income every year, that there would not be a deficit any year, that there would be no more borrowing for operating costs. This meant that money would be raised to meet the cost of operation, or expenses would be cut to bring cost of operation within the total annual income.

This commitment played a vital part in the whole campaign. It is the considered opinion of the General Chair-

Achievement faces the future. This is the watchword of Sewanee at this time. A man or an institution must go on from one accomplishment to another. The Sustaining Fund Campaign with all the issues and consequences involved was a splendid success, but to be satisfied or complacent would be a great misfortune. Achievement must look forward in a sort of divine discontent. The goal is always ahead, it is never attained.

The Sustaining Fund is the first step towards permanent security, strength, and growth. It gives security, but only for a few years if it is the last step.

The next step is the guarantee of a continuing financial security after the Sustaining Fund and its five-year subscriptions have been expended. This next step contemplates regular and dependable annual appropriations from the Dioceses which own Sewanee to the sum of $25,000.00 beginning in 1941, and a living endowment from Alumni and friends in the form of annual gifts to the sum of $25,000.00, beginning in 1943.

The cost of operation now exceeds income, except from gifts, by an amount of over $50,000.00, and this cost of operation cannot be reduced. Unless drastic cuts in operation are to be made, even to the elimination of units or agencies, or until endowment is increased, a dependable income of at least $50,000.00 must be a reasonable certainty for next year, for the next

A Great Victory for Sewanee

Sewanee Alumni! It is a remarkable and unique achievement among the annals of the alumni of all colleges and universities. The success of the Campaign is a great victory for Sewanee. It is also a great victory for Sewanee's Alumni. Happy and proud must be every Sewanee man who stands in the comradeship of those sons of Sewanee who either by their work or by their gifts, however small, shared in the great common endeavor to bring a new day of hope, strength, and permanence to THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH.

Achievement Faces the Future

five years, for the next ten years, and so on, besides the revenues from tuition, charges, and present endowment.

Efforts are now being made to bring about regular diocesan support beginning in 1941. Eight dioceses have indicated a willingness and a desire to appropriate a total of $12,000.00 annually. It is hoped that the other dioceses will respond likewise.

The third step is to obtain $3,000,-000.00 additional endowment and to pay off long-term debt, in order that Sewanee may have a net productive endowment of $4,000,000.00. A program is now under way to persuade men and women to place THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH in their wills and to persuade others to make gifts of large sums to the University—wills and gifts that will be unrestricted as to specific details. Bequests of substantial sums for Sewanee have been placed in wills in the past year.

The fourth step in the program is the building of the Gailor Memorial, the completion of All Saints' Chapel and of the Quadrangle, and the completion of a full college unit for five hundred students and of a theological unit for seventy-five students. A great effort will give the University a complete university plant, without the slightest doubt, when the time comes to launch the effort.

All these things are possible in this four-point program of security, strength, and growth. They will be accomplished sooner than expected if Sewanee looks ahead with new hope and new courage and lives by the watchword, "Achievement Faces the Future."

Implications of the Campaign

man, through his intimate connection with the campaign at almost every place and point, that one-third of the contributors to the Sustaining Fund would not have made subscriptions had they not been convinced that Sewanee would operate without a deficit. It is his opinion, also, that one-third of the contributors would not have given if they believed that the University would borrow, because many people are willing for an institution to borrow money rather than that they should work or give to prevent it. Beyond any shadow of a doubt, two-thirds of the subscriptions and statements of intent obtained

General Education Board
Grant of $25,000.00 Assured

Last October the General Education Board of New York voted a grant of $25,000.00 to THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH for Science equipment and apparatus and for repairs and renovation of Science Hall. This grant was made on condition that the sum of $500,000.00 in subscriptions and statements of intent be raised. The successful completion of the Sustaining Fund Campaign assures to Sewanee the grant of $25,-000.00.

Other gifts have come to the University in the past year: gifts to endowment, $25,000.00; gifts for special purposes, $40,000.00; gifts to the Hospital, $46,000.00.

Last January the will of Miss Lizzie Baker Bransford, of Augusta, Georgia, bequeathed to Sewanee the sum of $300,000.00. It is hoped and expected that the securities and properties of this estate will be turned over to the University in the near future.

could not have been secured had it not been for the positive pronouncement of a clear financial program by the University.

It is, therefore, a distinct and binding obligation upon Sewanee to operate each year within its income, and upon all Sewanee's alumni and friends to see to it that this can and will be done. To depart from this commitment would be a great misfortune with most unhappy consequences.

To establish and maintain right policies or principles for an institution of learning or for any human agency is essential. Ideals and high principles are necessary. They are the reason for the existence of a college. Necessary also are the policies or principles through which the ideals and purposes may be realized. Financial integrity is a fundamental policy and principle for every institution. The higher an institution's purpose and the nobler its ideals, the more essential is this policy and principle.

Many groups make up a University family—students, faculty, staff, residents, alumni, trustees, regents, and friends. For each group and the individual within each group to accept responsibility for the welfare and development of the University is a tremendously fine asset. The circle of shifting responsibility is one of the most serious handicaps to the security and growth of a University. It always harms, it often destroys. In this campaign the various Sewanee groups have assumed responsibility and acted in the spirit of responsibility. Hundreds of individuals have assumed and acted in the spirit of responsibility and in a full sense, not measuring what they should do or give by the efforts or amounts of others.

The Sustaining Fund Campaign has accomplished actually not one, but three, results. The campaign has raised a large fund; the campaign has established the policy of financial integrity; and the campaign has brought about a new sense of responsibility on the part of groups and individuals for THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH.

On the Mountain

"And the Smile on the Face of the Tiger"

—From the PURPLE—March 14, 1940. Magnolia seemed like old times last Monday. Cheers rang out that fairly shook the frame of the building. The swing of the spirit pendulum is on its way up from its low ebb.

Coaches Gillem and Fullbright were guests at "Miss Polly's" Table. Soon a "Hi! coach! Hi! Gillem!" followed by a "Hi! coach! Hi! Fullbright!" rang out. In response to a mass chorus of "Speech! Speech!", Coach Gillem arose, accompanied by a tremendous applause. He spoke of his appreciation, of his fondness for Sewanee, and ended his short talk by saying, "We'll again put that smile back on the face of the Tiger."

The applause, the whistling that followed has not had its equal at Sewanee for many a year. Coach Fullbright spoke too. His also was a short spirited speech, ending with his saying that his sole purpose here is to bring back that grinning countenance. Again "Mag" swayed under the applause.

The spirit of the team is back too. It has not had as much spirit since the Chattanooga game. Students have actually come out to watch practice, and several new men have come out for the squad, in response to a meeting held by Coach Gillem to encourage non-scholarship men playing.

Sewanee football, at last, is beginning to become an enjoyable sport. and defeatism is being buried under worn-out shoulder and blocking pads.

Rev. Moultrie Guerry Visits the University

A welcome visitor to the Mountain was the REV. MOULTRIE GUERRY, Rector of Old Saint Paul's Church, Norfolk. Mr. Guerry, brother of Vice-Chancellor Guerry, and Chaplain of the University from 1929 to 1938, returned to Sewanee for his first visit since he resigned from the Chaplaincy three years ago. He preached in Chapel on Sunday, January 14th. to a large congregation. Mr. Guerry's visit was the occasion for a series of social functions in which he met the students and his many friends on the Mountain. Monday evening Vice-Chancellor and Mr. Guerry were hosts to the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, into which Mr. Guerry was initiated as an alumnus member.

New Resident Physician

DR. HENRY T. KIRBY-SMITH, grandson of General Edmund Kirby-Smith and son of Dr. R. M. Kirby-Smith, health officer of the University, has returned to Sewanee to be the resident physician at the Emerald-Hodgson Hospital.

Dr. Kirby-Smith is a graduate of the Sewanee Military Academy, '23, the University, B.S., '27, the University of Pennsylvania, M.D., '30. He is a member of the S.A.E. Fraternity and played on the football teams of '25, '26, and '27.

The PURPLE of February 8th writes of Dr. Kirby-Smith—"In the brief interval which has passed since his arrival, the Doctor has shown himself to be the type of man who fits perfectly into the Sewanee scene. His good will and enthusiasm in regard to everything pertaining to the practice of medicine at Sewanee have marked him as a gentleman who will be greatly admired and liked by everyone with whom he comes into contact."

Dr. Kirby-Smith, his wife, and two young children will live in the house provided for the resident physician just opposite the Hospital.

Admiral Grayson Memorial

Mr. Bernard M. Baruch has given the sum of five thousand dollars to the Emerald-Hodgson Hospital in memory of Admiral Cary T. Grayson. This sum will take the form of permanent endowment to be used for the maintenance of one of the rooms in the Hospital.

Admiral Grayson received the degree of Ph.G. from the Medical Department of THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH in 1902. He was one of Sewanee's most distinguished Alumni, whose death in 1938 brought to an end a life of eminent service. Admiral Grayson's son, William Cabell Grayson, is a freshman in the University.

Torian Memorial

Friends in Indianapolis and Indiana have established a Student Loan Fund at Sewanee to honor the memory of John Potter Torian, who lost his life in an automobile accident on December 10th, 1939. It is peculiarly appropriate that, through this fund, Jack should aid a succession of boys to enjoy the advantages of Sewanee which he loved so well and in the interest of which he was ever a faithful worker.

Mrs. Cunningham Memorial

The Civic League of Sewanee has placed a new operating table in the Hospital in memory of Mrs. Percy Cunningham, former Matron of Hoffman Hall. The Civic League, of which Mrs. Cunningham was for many years a faithful member, was happy to establish this particular memorial to her because the presentation of this much needed table had long been her dream.

On March 18th, one Senior and two Juniors were initiated into OMICRON DELTA KAPPA. They were: Gilbert Wright, Senior, San Antonio, Texas; Clendon Lee, Junior, Dallas, Texas; Lee McGriff, Junior, Birmingham, Alabama. All three are members of the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

RT. REV. HENRY ST. GEORGE TUCKER, D.D.
Commencement Preacher

MRS. EPHRAIM KIRBY-SMITH has taken the place of the late Mrs. Percy Cunningham as Matron of Hoffman. Mrs. Kirby-Smith will be remembered by many as Miss "Polly" Brooks. Since the death in 1938 of her husband, Ephraim Kirby-Smith—youngest son of General Kirby-Smith and well known Sewanee football player 1903-'06—she has been living in Sewanee with her mother, Mrs. Preston S. Brooks.

* * * * *

On Thursday, April 4th, six juniors in the University were initiated into PHI BETA KAPPA. All had averages of 92 or above for their first five semesters in the University. They were: Frank Ball, of Charleston, South Carolina; Frank Dana, Columbia, South Carolina; David Dyer, Nashville, Tennessee; Clendon Lee, Dallas, Texas; de Rossett Myers, Charleston, South Carolina; Lee McGriff, Birmingham, Alabama.

Spring Football

BY RICHARD CORRY—Sports Editor
PURPLE

"I have never seen any better spirit in a group of boys." That was the opening comment of Coach J. F. "Jenks" Gillem when he was asked to review the results of the past three weeks of spring football practice. "The willingness and amount of spirit shown by the squad as a whole has been the most impressive part of the practice." Continued the new Tiger mentor, "I believe the boys have made up their minds to work hard and win some ball games, and I guarantee they will win some if they continue in that attitude. In view of the fact that they have had to adjust themselves to a change in the style of play, I consider the work of the squad highly satisfactory. We have at least two weeks of practice ahead of us, and there is still much more improvement to be looked for. In the last few days several of the boys have shown a very marked improvement, and the squad is functioning more as a team than ever. The blocking of the squad is a great deal better now than it was at the beginning of the spring session. In the next two weeks I hope to see the timing and coherence of plays perfected. The next two weeks should also reveal next fall's starting line-up—that is, unless the situation at the end of spring practice is greatly changed in September."

Coach Gillem and his assistants, Lex Fullbright and Joel Eaves, laboring under the handicap of some very bad weather which forced them to confine practices to the gymnasium for over a week, have brought the squad along rapidly, and are apparently well on the way toward accomplishing the purpose of spring practice as it was expressed by Coach Gillem—"to put into the boys now something they will be able to take out and use next fall."

A new wrinkle was added to spring training on Saturday, April 13, when the whole Mountain, along with many visiting friends and alumni, joined in the observance of "S" Day. The day's activities began with the noon chapel service, at which time honorary memberships in the "S" Club were awarded Dr. Alexander Guerry, Vice-Chancellor. Dr. G. S. Bruton, Dr. J. M. Scott, and Mr. Edmund C. Armes of Birmingham, Ala. The afternoon program began at 2 p.m. with a tennis match between Sewanee and Vanderbilt. At 3:30 the big event of the day, an intra-squad football game spiced with band music and all the fanfare of a Saturday afternoon in the fall, took place. At 7 p.m. the "S" Club held its annual banquet at Tuckway Inn. The "S" Club dance, which featured the selection of a beauty queen, got underway at 9 o'clock.

Oldest Fraternity To Hold Reunion in June

The Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity will hold a Reunion at Commencement. Plans for the Reunion have been in formation for some time and promise to bring success. The Reunion will bring to the Mountain a number of men who have not been here for many years.

Among the old timers will be W. S. Lovell, (Tod), who, with his brother, founded the chapter, assisted by Dr. Quintard, at that time Bishop of Tennessee. He will find among his contemporaries the Rt. Rev. T. D. Bratton, Mazyck Ravenel, A. E. Shields, Warren S. Reese, and among those who came shortly after, MacKellar, Lee Mason, Hardwick Ruth, John B. Elliott, Craik Morris, and Ben F. Finney. Besides these, Proc Galbraith, Isaac Ball, Bob Gaston, the Cleveland brothers, the Berry brothers, Nat Heyward, Bob Elliott, Edward Douglas Johnston, Steiner Dunbar, Wilder Glover, and Colonel Bob McMillan will be among those present. The fact is, that the entire list of those who have already expressed their intention to be present is too long for publication, but, in order that it may not be supposed that the convention will consist of greybeards entirely, we might add John Dearborn, Fred Hard, William Coughlan, Powell Yates, Willcoxon, Virden, Frank Dearing, David Yates, the Jeffress brothers, Jimmy Krantz, three members of the Eustis family, several Stoneys, and a number of Balls.

The events scheduled for the Reunion include: a reception at the Cliffs, the Mountain home of Sess and Billy Cleveland, a general reception to all on the Mountain at the Chapter House, a model initiation (of a real candidate however), the conferring of Gold Certificates on those who have been members for fifty years, and a dinner at Tuck-away. Besides these happenings, there will be of course the usual Commencement activities and the meeting of the Associated Alumni.

John P. Nicholson is Dead

To very many Sewanee men of the period between 1915 and 1924, the news of Coach Nicholson's death will bring profound regret.

John Nicholson was truly a great coach. When he came to Sewanee in 1915, there was no Track Team at all and very little interest in track. His first team had five men on it, and these had all been persuaded by him to try out for an event in which they had not even known they had any aptitude. But in three years he produced a team which won the Championship of the S.I.A.A. and a first leg on the big silver cup offered by Georgia Tech, in an invitation meet. After this, it is not a matter of surprise to add that later on the two other legs were won and so the cup.

In 1920, with Coughlan, Hammond and company, the Track Team won another championship in the largest Track Meet ever held in the South. Seven members of the team distinguished themselves at the Pennsylvania relays, where Coughlan, although beaten by a nose, broke the then world's record in the 440-yd hurdles, Skidmore threw the first fifty-six pound weight he ever saw far enough to win the medal for third place, and the mile relay team of Dearborn, Minor, Payne and Coughlan came in fourth in the principal relay of the meet.

The fact is that not Sewanee only but the whole South owes a debt to John Nicholson for making Track a major sport. In this connection, it is proper to record that the great teams 1919-23 were developed without the aid of any kind of subsidization. Nicholson had a wonderful knack of discovering talent and excelled in the art developing it.

Colonel Bull Resigns As Alumni Trustee

Colonel H. T. Bull, '01, was a recent visitor to the Mountain. With Mrs. Bull, he was the guest of Miss Charlott, Elliott and Miss Marie Truslow.

Colonel Bull is one of Sewanee's most loyal Alumni, and the record of his services throughout the years is one that will not soon be forgotten. His latest contribution to the welfare of Sewanee is the organization of the Sewanee-Southern California Alumni Association. For six years, 1931-1937 he was President of the Associated Alumni. In 1939 he was elected Alumni Trustee for the period 1939-1942.

It is with great regret that the ALUMNI NEWS announces the resignation of Colonel Bull as Alumni Trustee, the resignation to be effective immediately. Colonel Bull, who lives in Santa Barbara, California, states as his reason for resigning the fact that distance makes it impossible for him to be regular in attendance at the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees at Commencement. At the same time he has assured the Vice-Chancellor and the Secretary of the Alumni that he is always at the call of Sewanee.

We express to you, Colonel Bull, our feeling of deep gratitude for your faithful services, and we accept, with great regret, your resignation as Trustee. Your loyalty, your generosity, your unflinching interest in all that concerns Sewanee will always be a challenge to Sewanee men everywhere.

20th Anniversary of Phi Gamma Delta

The News takes great pleasure in printing the following invitation from the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity at Sewanee. Fraternity reunions have come to be a prominent feature of the Commencement programs.

Gamma Sigma of Phi Gamma Delta cordially invites the Alumni of the University of the South to its 20th Anniversary, June 7-9.

Great will be the festivities atop the Mountain that weekend, for Commencement will be in full swing. Not only that, but you will be returning to Sewanee, to see that place you remember so well. You will meet many old friends and make many new ones. You will recall absent friends and wonder where they are, what they are doing, and why they are not here with you. That is why we chose Commencement as the time for our reunion. We want you one and all, not only the Fijis, but every alumnus, to return and help us celebrate this glorious event.

Just a peek into the future will show you that we really mean what we have said. On Friday, June 7, we are going to have an open house for the Mountain, featuring a "Smorgesbord" piled high with delicious Swedish food. Sunday, a Tea will be held to those visiting the Mountain, with the theme of memories as the motif. So come to the Phi Gam house and help us make this a reality. Don't forget our 20th Anniversary, June 7-9.

Coach "Jenks" Gillem

BY BOB PHILLIPS, SEWANEEN '22
Sports Writer, Birmingham News,
Birmingham, Ala.

FULLBRIGHT — GILLEM — EAVES — SANDIFER — MACON

When Harry Clark and Birmingham-Southern decided simultaneously to give up football, there was but one choice for the Sewanee job that was Clark's: Jennings F. Gillem, called Jenks, and one of Sewanee's own. Gillem's name repeatedly had been mentioned through the years in connection with the Sewanee post but through those years Gillem had a pleasant and profitable coaching-business combination in Birmingham. He generally was deaf to overtures from elsewhere.

In picking a new football coach, Dr. Alexander Guerry considered many other men, but those close to the situation felt from the first that Gillem was the man—a man peculiarly fitted for the unusual demands of the head football duties on the Mountain, and with a very successful coach, one recognized as especially able in handling small squads of the kind that Sewanee probably will always have.

Sewanee men of an earlier day are familiar with Gillem's career as a Purple Tiger. But their memory can stand a little refreshing while the younger men are being given the highlights. Gillem played end for Sewanee three years, in 1910, 1911, and 1912. In each of those years he was authentic All-Southern—in those days there was only one All-Southern. Famed as a punter and dropkicker, Gillem also was adept at passing and ball-carrying. His drop-kicking feats were truly sensational. In the Alabama game of 1910, he drop-kicked four field goals. In 1911, he was successful in 13 of 16 attempts, some of them for extra points. Four big games were decided in Sewanee's favor by the Gillem toe. Alabama was felled by a 40-yard dropkick on a sloppy field; Tulane went down 9-6 by a Gillem dropkick; Texas was nosed out 6-5 by a dropkick for extra point and Georgia was beaten 15-12 by a field goal.

Typical of comment on Gillem's appointment was that of Rt. Rev. Frank A. Jahan, Bishop of Florida, during a visit to Birmingham. Said the Bishop, a famous Tiger center whose last year, 1910, was Gillem's first:

"I think Jenks Gillem the ideal selection for Sewanee football coach. He was the most valuable man on our team in 1910 and I can truthfully say that when the going was the toughest, Gillem played his best. He never knew when to give up. If there's such a thing as imparting one's traits to a bunch of boys, the Sewanee team under Gillem is sure to be a fighting team all the way."

Gillem was quite as celebrated a baseballer as a footballer in his undergraduate days, being one of his day's outstanding collegiate pitchers. So notable were his mound exploits that our big league clubs, the Yankees, the Cubs, the Dodgers and the Cardinals, offered him contracts. His father's wishes were to the contrary, however, and Jenks yielded to the paternal wish. During his 20-year coaching career in Birmingham, divided between Howard and Birmingham-Southern, Gillem established himself as one of the most successful football coaches in the South. Three Dixie Conference championships were won by Gillem's Birmingham-Southern eleven over the nine-year existence of the league before the Panthers quit the game last season. In 1934 the Panthers were one of the nation's 10 or 12 unbeaten and untied teams, their wins that year including one over Auburn.

Coach Lex Fullbright

Added to Sewanee's coaching staff is Lex Fullbright, Birmingham-Southern, '27. He takes the place of Mr. Allen Lincoln, Assistant Coach since 1931, who resigned in February of this year. Mr. Fullbright, on his first visit to the Mountain, felt an immediate and abundant infusion of the Sewanee Spirit. The following, quoted from the PURPLE of March 14, is eloquent testimony to the way in which Sewanee has received Mr. Fullbright:

... It is to the personality of Coach Lex Fullbright, the new line tutor, that the PURPLE wishes to call attention. Coach Fullbright has been on the Mountain little more than a week, but he has already captured the hearts of all Sewanee, just as Coach Gillem did, a little earlier in the year. Mr. Fullbright is a graduate of Birmingham-Southern, and has been with Coach Gillem for the past eleven years. He is an able line Coach, and is recognized among coaching circles as being one of the South's outstanding scouts. Coach Fullbright, the PURPLE salutes you, and hopes that your career on the Mountain will be long and successful.

For the Alumni, we extend to Mr. Fullbright a hearty welcome to Sewanee. Football is close to the hearts of all Sewanee Alumni, and we will watch with great hope and interest the fortunes of Sewanee's Tigers under the new Gillem-Eaves-Fullbright combination.

A Dean for Three Decades

THE VERY REV. J. WILMER GRESHAM, '95 for thirty years Dean of the San Francisco Cathedral, has been made Dean Emeritus. A sermon delivered by the Rt. Rev. Edward L. Parsons, Bishop of California, on the occasion of his retirement was published in the autumn issue of the Cathedral Age. The Bishop paid glowing tribute to the faith and consecration of a man whose life work it was "to convert a paper organization into a living organism—to give reality, life, activity to a dream."

Called to be Dean of the Cathedral shortly after the earthquake, he was the moving force in the years which have seen rise the present magnificent edifice of Grace Cathedral. He declined at one time a missionary bishopric to give his life to the Cathedral.

Dean Gresham, a native of Mississippi, entered the University in 1890. He was a member of the K.A. Fraternity. He received from the University the degree of G.D., '95. B.D., '96, D.D., '15. He is an honorary member of the Sewanee chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Dr. Paul F. Cadman, '11, B.A. University of California, Ph.D. University of Paris, former Professor of Economics at the University of California, former President of the American Research Foundation, San Francisco, has recently moved to New York to become economist of the American Bankers Association. The News Bureau of the A.B.A. says, "Dr. Cadman will be adviser to all of the association's committees, departments, and divisions on the fundamental economic aspects of the problem with which they deal. He will maintain wide association with the people of his profession and will be available as an interpreter of current economic trends and forces at bankers' conferences, etc."

Theodore Marion DuBose, Sr.

Dr. Theodore Marion DuBose, Sr. died Christmas morning at his home in Columbia, South Carolina. Dr. DuBose was a graduate of the University of South Carolina at Charleston, M.D., 1881. Shortly after graduation from Medical School, he returned to Sewanee, where he served as Health Officer until 1891. Dr. DuBose was a faithful member of Trinity Church, Columbia, and in his life held every lay office in that church. He was a loyal alumnus, three of his four sons being educated at Sewanee: John Bratton DuBose, '05 S.M.A., William Porcher DuBose, '23, David St. Pierre DuBose '26. He was a member of the A.T.O. Fraternity.

Of the esteem in which he was held in his own community, the following editorial from the Record, Columbia S. C., bears witness:

Nearly 2,000 years ago, tradition has it, an old man who had seen enough suffering and sorrow to fill his heart with bitterness and hatred wrote briefly and beautifully the story that has given the Christian world the poignant beauty of the Christmas tradition. He was Saint Luke, "the beloved physician," as Saint Paul called him.

In the death Christmas morning of Dr. Theodore M. DuBose, Columbia lost another "beloved physician"—one who, like Saint Luke, had faced suffering and sorrow but had kept his heart and vision clear. Dr. DuBose was more than a doctor of medicine to the many patients whose lives he touched in more than a half century of faithful service. He was a counsellor in times of perplexity, a comforter in hours of sadness and a kind and loyal friend always.

He will be missed as only those who have earned both respect and affection can be missed.

News of the Sewanee-Southern California Alumni Association

April 11, 1940

DEAR MAJOR GASS:

Here is the information I have gathered about the alumni out here. In this hard-boiled western country, it is "the survival of the fittest", but when you see what the Sewanee men have done, you will realize they are the fittest.

Sincerely,

POCAHONTAS SMITH

* * * *

Robert Allen, who attended Sewanee from 1930 to 1932, left Chattanooga in 1933 and moved to Pasadena with his family. With a good eye for business, he soon discovered that in Southern California, where there are more automobiles than anywhere else in the world, a business connected with cars had a good chance to succeed. He is now proprietor of the Right-By Auto Service Stations—a new idea which evolves and develops as it goes along. This proprietor also has another project under way. Jean Franklin, the attractive Pasadena girl he brought to the banquet, will soon be Mrs. Robert Allen.

* * * *

Leicester C. Chapman, '17, whose college career was cut short by an injury in the Texas-Sewanee football game in 1913, came to California in 1936. Now with the United States Veterans' Administration, he and Mrs. Chapman are living, with their son in West Los Angeles.

* * * *

On February 20th, the Sewanee-Southern California Alumni Association could boast the oldest living Sewanee man and the youngest Sewanee man. Armstead Leigh, '73, classmate of General Gorgas, was to have been guest of honor at the banquet, but was unable to attend. George Miller Britton '62, tried hard to make it (his uncle Tim would have been relieved if he had), but it was 11:00 p.m. the next evening before he set foot in the Huntington Memorial Hospital at Pasadena. His mother is Tim Miller's younger sister—Cristin Wells—whose lovely soprano voice attracted Hollywood producers. Until she met Bill Britton, class of '27, last winter, she played important roles on the stage (under Gilmore Brown) and in motion pictures. Bill, living formerly in Memphis (where his father was President of the Cotton Exchange) was transferred to California in 1938. He is now in the Los Angeles office of Anderson, Clayton & Co.

* * * *

Col. Henry Tilghman Bull, '01, member of the Board of Trustees and former president of the Associated Alumni, is at present living in Santa Barbara. He and Lewis H. Mattair, '90, and Samuel Watson, '85, often get together for an evening of Sewanee reminiscences. Col. and Mrs. Bull are now making an extensive trip from Santa Barbara to New Orleans (where they lunched recently with Kemper Williams), to Florida, for a visit with their daughter Betty, then to New York, and back to California. Col. Bull is a loved and respected citizen of Santa Barbara.

* * * *

Haskell DuBose holds an important position with the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., transacting most of their out-of-town business. Mrs. DuBose, Sr., of Sewanee, has just spent a few weeks with him and his wife Ruth and little daughter Virginia, at their home in Los Angeles.

* * * *

Henry Clark Smith, '15, of All Saints' Church, Riverside, is one of the most popular clergymen in Southern California. Hardly a day goes by that one does not read in the paper that he has conducted a marriage, or some other ceremony, in a community far removed from his own parish.

* * * *

Edw. Harton graduated from the Columbia Law School after receiving his B.A. from Sewanee in '21. He is now a member of the California Bar Association and law instructor at Cumnock College, Los Angeles.

* * * *

W. J. Hine, '04, is a captain in the United States Navy, stationed at San Diego, California. The banquet was very much honored to have him make the long drive up to Beverly Hills in order to be with us on February 19th.

* * * *

Three of the Williams brothers of Fort Worth—Henry, John and Nick—have made California their headquarters. However, John's work has taken him to northern California, and he alone of the three could not attend the banquet on February 19th. Henry, '29, is with the Johns-Manville Sales Corp; Nick, '26, is on the editorial staff of the Los Angeles Times.

* * * *

Tim Miller, '26, has done what most people would consider the impossible. In the depth of the depression eight years ago, he started an investment firm in Pasadena (where new business ventures almost inevitably die an early death) and made a success of it. Giving up a fine connection in 1932, he telegraphed Bob Stivers, '24, to come out and help him launch "George R. Miller & Co.," which is probably one of the fastest growing firms in Southern California. Tim and Bob, with their Southern drawl and casual ways, no doubt amaze their less successful business associates in Pasadena, for George R. Miller & Company is making history in the financial world. Tim also has an interest in Cook-Miller & Co., Los Angeles brokers. This summer Tim plans to fly to Mexico City, then to Nashville, stopping for a visit in Sewanee before going on to New York.

* * * *

Bob Stivers and his attractive wife, Norine, will leave soon for Mexico, taking with them their young son Jerry.

* * * *

Chase Traweek, '18, is district manager of Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., handling all Western sales. Mr. and Mrs. Traweek live in Beverly Hills.

* * * *

Paul Arnold, '18, has left the army and entered the oil business. This week his first well goes down on "Signal Hill", near Long Beach, where he is living now with his family.

* * * *

Ward Ritchie, '31, has won real eminence in the printing and publishing world. The Ward Ritchie Press, which began eight years ago in a barn, is now of national importance. Two of the fifty books of the year mentioned by the American Institute of Graphic Arts were his publications. Five of the forty best Western books chosen by the Rounce and Coffin Club were his, and the New York Book Clinic last month chose his book, The Religion Worth Having, by Thomas Nixon Carver.

* * * *

Howard Shoup, '26, has for four years held the important position of "Designer for Warner Brothers Studio." For some time now his name has been listed along with the director, producer, writers, etc., of their major pictures.

After leaving Sewanee, Howard studied at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn and then became Designer for Bonwit Teller, New York. While there, he was offered the Hollywood position.

* * * *

George H. Williams, '02, by the testimony of his fellow citizens, is the best loved man in Monrovia, California. Serving for several years recently as mayor, he has, through his many civic enterprises and his understanding of human needs, done much to make Monrovia one of the most orderly and prosperous little cities in the San Gabriel Valley.

Charles Piggott in the News

DR. CHARLES S. PIGGOTT, '14, Geophysicist of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, has provided the evidence to Wilmot A. Bradley, of the United States Geological Survey, whereby he forecasts the approach of another ice age. Dr. Piggott some years ago perfected a device by which he shoots a steel pipe into the ocean floor at various places and brings up cores of ocean mud. Mud from the ocean bottom, writes Mr. Bradley in the Scientific Monthly, has shown a fairly regular sequence of hot and cold spells in the earth's history, and the world is now in one of its summers of existence. Winter, however, Mr. Bradley assures us, is thousands of years off.

Dr. Piggott received the degree of B.A. from the University in 1914. His graduate work was done at Johns Hopkins University, from which he received the degree of Ph.D. He is an honorary member of the Sewanee Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Piggott's father, Cameron Piggott, M.A., M.D., was Professor of Chemistry in this University from 1887 until his death in 1911. A tablet in his memory hangs on the walls of All Saints' Chapel.

be changed to read as follows:

This Constitution shall only be amended at an annual meeting of the association after ninety days' notice of such proposed amendment shall have been given to the members of the association, and then only by the approval of two-thirds of the members of the association present at such meeting and voting.

(5) That Article 2 of the By-Laws which reads as follows:

The annual dues of this association shall be three ($3.00) dollars payable at, or before, the annual meeting be repealed, this action being necessary if the proposed amendment to Article 4 is adopted, and that the present Article 3, regarding the duties of officers, be made Article 2.

John Potter Torian

John Potter Torian, '33, was killed in an automobile accident on December 10, 1939. After funeral services held at All Saints' Chapel, Jack was buried in the Sewanee Cemetery beside his brother, Telfair Hodgson Torian, who died while he was a student at Sewanee.

Jack was well known to many generations of Sewanee students. He spent four years in the University, '32-'36, was a member of Phi Delta Theta and Phi Beta Kappa. He did graduate work in mathematics at Columbia and North Carolina. For the last two years of his life he was employed in the Actual Department of the Provident Life & Accident Insurance Company of Chattanooga. He was a frequent visitor to the Mountain, and it was while he was returning to Chattanooga from Sewanee that the fatal accident occurred, about one mile from the foot of the Mountain in Battle Creek Cove.

Jack's grandfather, Dr. Telfair Hodgson, was one-time Vice-Chancellor of the University. Two uncles, Dr. John Hodgson, '87, and Telfair Hodgson, '88, were graduates of the University. University Celebrates Seventy-Second Commencement

Colorful Ceremonies
Attract Many Visitors

Numerous Social Events Add
To Enjoyment

The compression of Commencement activities within the space of four days, which was instituted last year, was again justified by a happy result. It is doubtful whether there has ever been a happier week-end at Sewanee, or one more packed with significant and interesting happenings.

It was given a flying start on Thursday night by the Vice-Chancellor's formal announcement to the Board of Regents that the Sustaining Fund Campaign had been pushed to a successful conclusion and that thus the University was assured of an additional income of half a million dollars, during the next five years.

The reunions of the Phi Gamma Delta and Alpha Tau Omega Fraternities, both of which were well attended, brought extra life and color to the usual Commencement festivities.

The Board of Trustees contributed to the general happiness by electing as Chaplain a popular alumnus, the Rev. George Hall, B.A., '34, B.D., '36, and gave added strength to the Faculty by securing Professor Arthur Dugan of the University of North Carolina and Oxford University as Professor of Government.

The social events attendant upon the commencement season seemed to derive an added zest from the general atmosphere of good-fellowship and enjoyment which was all-pervading. Of these events, there were many, of which those which took place at Fulford Hall under the guidance of "The most charming of hostesses," the wife of the Vice-Chancellor, were particularly noteworthy. First there was the Vice-Chancellor's reception, which was as usual a grand get-together of all the people of the Mountain. Besides this, Mrs. Guerry entertained for various groups, on several different occasions. Then there was the beautiful dinner given by Mrs. R. W. B. Elliott for the ATO ladies. The two reunion Fraternities gave general receptions, and Bill and Jess Cleveland entertained at their summer home the ATO's and their families.

Delivers Strong Appeal
For "Strength Within"

The test of a man is his courage and resourcefulness in a crisis. The test of an institution is its courage and resourcefulness in a crisis. The test of an institution is its fortitude and strength in adversity.

Difficult times and adversity are the lot of man and his institutions; neither man nor his institutions can escape difficulty or adversity. In the usual course of events, both adversity and periods of stress and trouble are certain to occur. To withstand the storms of a crisis or the blows of adversity, man and his institutions must have strength within sufficient for the hours of trial.

Often an institution succumbs in a time of crisis or difficulty. It appears that the blows from without, the impact of unexpected misfortune, cause the failure or collapse of an institution. As a general rule, however, with exceptions, the failure or collapse of an institution—or of a man himself—is due to weakness within, lack of wisdom, lack of good judgment, lack of character, lack of courage, or lack of strength. In other words, there is no real excuse for the failure or collapse of an institution, even in the face of grave difficulties. Every institution must develop, therefore, that strength within, must possess that fortitude and resourcefulness that will make and keep it indestructible.

This is a bold philosophy for an institution to live by, and only a bold and brave institution will accept and live by such a philosophy. But it is its best chance for survival and growth, the best guarantee of its earthly immortality.

The war in Europe is a great disaster and a great tragedy. It is adversity at its worst. Its immediate effect upon the world and this nation is terrible, and the effect of the severe depression in the years to come will be terrible also. Sewanee's own situation before the war was difficult enough, her problems demanding solution perplexing enough. Now a great war has burst upon us.

A Message From An Alumnus

All alumni who have been ambitious for Sewanee are now filled with new enthusiasm, new confidence and new hope—and for very definite and good reasons.

First of all we know, without doubt, that our University is led and directed by an alumnus of great ability and devotion and already he has proven that he is not only a faithful steward of Sewanee's inestimable educational mysteries, but is also an eminent executive. Then we also know that during the past year Sewanee's immediate financial difficulties have been removed by the completion of what has been called the Sustaining Fund.

Obviously, here are two good reasons for rejoicing and new confidence; but as an alumnus, ambitious for Sewanee, I want to say, especially to Sewanee alumni, that we should not think of $500,000 as the Sustaining Fund of the University.

Personally, I prefer to say and think that we have raised $500,000 from the Sustaining Fund of the University. For the Sustaining Fund of Sewanee is its alumni and its friends; and if our high hopes for Sewanee's growth are to be realized the Sustaining Fund—the alumni and friends of Sewanee—must continue to give generously as the needs of the institution may require.

In reality, there are only two things that an alumnus can do for his University to sustain it and to make it grow. He can give money and he can send worthy boys to complete the institution's student body. Sewanee has the right to ask its loyal alumni and friends for both; and again, in my judgment, any alumnus certifies and proves his loyalty as he consistently and regularly does one or both of these things.

What has really happened recently is that the alumni have responded splendidly to the appeal for monies. Now the alumni are being asked by the Vice-Chancellor to send boys to Sewanee, boys who are qualified to represent Sewanee, boys who should represent you.

Nothing is more vitally important than for alumni to realize now that the next step for us in sustaining Sewanee is to send boys to Sewanee. Personally, I feel as though I have failed any year as an alumnus unless I get some promising youngster and convince him that he ought to go to Sewanee because of the character of Sewanee's Faculty, Fraternity, Fight and Faith.

The Annual Meeting of The Associated Alumni

On Saturday morning, June 8, at ten o'clock, President Harding Woodall called to order an unusually well attended and representative meeting of the Associated Alumni. For the information of alumni generally, the News prints the following high-lights of the meeting.

Alumni Trustees

The following results of the ballot-by-mail election of alumni trustees were reported:

For the regular three-year term, July, 1940, to July, 1943:

Clerical Trustee:

Rt. Rev. Henry D. Phillips, D.D., '03,
Box 2068, Roanoke, Va.

Lay Trustees:

Edmund C. Armes, '13
Jemison-Seibels Bldg., Birmingham, Ala.

John B. Snowden, II, '28
Commerce Title Bldg., Memphis, Tenn.

For the unexpired term, 1940 to 1942,
of Col. H. T. Bull, resigned:

Thomas P. Stoney, '11
51 Broad St., Charleston, S. C.

Election of Officers

Mr. Hughes Schoolfield reported for the Nominating Committee appointed by the Alumni Council and the report was unanimously adopted. (The names of the new officers of the Association appear at the head of Column 1, of this page.) Edmund C. Armes, '13, was again elected to serve as Alumni Representative on the Athletic Board of Control.

Amendments to the Constitution

The amendments to the Constitution, which had been passed at the last meeting and which have been published in former issues of the News, came up for final action. These amendments were passed unanimously.

The following amendment, proposed by Mr. Ben Cameron, was presented:

"Resolved That Article 5, Section 2, of the Constitution which now reads: 'The officers shall be elected at the regular meeting of the Associated Alumni and shall continue in office for four years (except the Organizing Secretary, who shall be elected as provided in Article 7, Section 3)' be amended so as to read as follows:

'The officers shall be elected at the regular meeting of the Associated Alumni, and shall continue in office for one year or until their successors have been elected and have qualified (except the Organizing Secretary, who shall be elected as provided in Article 7, Section 3).'

The Vice-Chancellor's Speech

The most important event of the meeting was Dr. Guerry's fine address, which he made in response to a request from the President.

The Vice-Chancellor began with an announcement of the completion of the Sustaining Fund and an expression of thanks to the alumni for their fine co-operation. He added, however, a word of warning: "There remains,

Sewanee at General Convention

Plans have been completed for the Sewanee Dinner at the General Convention in Kansas City, Missouri. The Time: Saturday, October 12th, 7 P.M. The Place: The Women's City Club, conveniently located with reference to the Auditorium and to the Hotel Muehlebach, convention headquarters. Price: $1.25.

At the Auditorium there will be a Sewanee Booth where there will be Sewanee matter on display, space to lounge, and an information bureau. Tickets for the Dinner will be on sale at the Sewanee Booth.

Sewanee alumni attending the General Convention are urged to hold open this date, Saturday evening, October 12th and to be present at this gathering of Sewanee alumni, trustees, and friends. For their entertainment, there will be shown for the first time a Sewanee motion picture in color, recently completed.

however, the task of collecting the subscriptions and statements of intent. The Sustaining Fund will not preserve Sewanee unless the subscriptions and statements of intent are paid." He then appealed to all chairmen and members of local committees to co-operate in the difficult task that remains.

The Vice-Chancellor continued with an analysis of the financial condition, prospects, and hopes for the future of the University:

"We must remember that the Sustaining Fund is only the first step in a general program for security, and for the growth and development of The University of the South. The next step is a Living Endowment to go into operation as soon as the Sustaining Fund is expended. This Living Endowment will comprise annual gifts of $50,000.00, $25,000.00 from alumni and friends each year and $25,000.00 from the Church each year. A major portion of the first $25,000.00 will be the Alumni Fund.

"The third step is an endowment of $4,000,000.00 above, beyond, and without any debt. This endowment will come from large gifts and from wills, bequests to the University placed in the wills of those who have a desire to make a lasting contribution to the permanence of The University of the South. We are not so very, very far from the goal of an endowment of $4,000,000.00. The University endowment now is $1,000,000.00. The University holds annuities to the amount of $1,000,000.00, the income from which will come to the University upon the death of the annuitants. The sum of at least $1,000,000.00 is already in the wills of men and women who have notified the University of their intended bequest.

"The debt of the University is $552,000.00. Definite plans for the full payment of this debt have made. We cannot say the debt has been paid but we can say that we have provided for the liquidation of all the indebtedness. Of the total debt of $552,000.00, the amount of $300,000.00 is a bond which the University owes itself; it is in reality the note of the University to its endowment and is held by the endowment. This bond of $300,000.00 is not a debt to any outside agency or party and cannot be called for payment. Furthermore, a Sinking Fund has been established and securities to the amount of approximately $75,000.00 have been set aside, the income from which goes into the Sinking Fund. In the course of time, this Sinking Fund will retire the $300,000.00 bond.

"Of the total debt of $552,000.00 the sum of $112,000.00 is a floating debt, notes to banks and individuals. The income from the Sustaining Fund will pay the floating indebtedness.

"The balance of the indebtedness is a long-term debt amounting to $140,000.00. In January, 1939, Mrs. Lizzie Baker Bransford of Augusta, Georgia, died, leaving the sum of $220,000.00 by bequest to Sewanee. By resolution of the Board of Regents, the income from this estate, except for $1,000.00 for scholarships, has been set aside for the payment of interest and principal of the long-term debt. The analysis of the long-term debt is, $75,000.00 to the Provident Life Insurance Company, thirteen years to run, interest 4½%; $45,000.00 Hoffman mortgage, fifty years to run, interest at 2%; $20,000.00 borrowed by the University a number of years ago from endowment, term of loan indefinite.

"It was a great temptation to add the Bransford Estate to general endowment and to use income for general purposes. To set aside income for liquidation of debt shows the determination of the University to follow a sound financial policy.

"The fourth step in Sewanee's general program is the completion of the Chapel, the building of the Gailor Memorial, the building of dormitories and classrooms for a College of five hundred students and for a Theological School of seventy-five students. When we are free of debt and when we have an endowment of $4,000,000.00, we should unite in a great common undertaking to achieve this building plan. It can and will be done. But first we must have financial security and the strength and permanence that comes therefrom."

The concluding remarks of the Vice-Chancellor, dealing with the all-important question of enrollment, constitute a genuine challenge to every Sewanee alumnus:

"We do not want a large student body in the college. Some day in the future, there should be five hundred students at Sewanee. For the next few years we can accommodate only approximately three hundred students. But we should receive many applications more than we can accept. It should not be difficult for Sewanee to have three hundred students selected and qualified for college work.

"There is no excuse or reason for Sewanee not to possess the capacity to draw students. Some say the cost is too high at Sewanee, but they forget that hundreds of Southern boys go to Eastern colleges every year to pay twice the cost for their education. Some say that the liberal arts curriculum is too restricted, but they forget that hundreds of thousands of young men are taking the liberal arts curriculum in the colleges of America. Some say Sewanee is isolated, but other institutions in small communities are flourishing.

"Some say Sewanee needs more publicity, that Sewanee should engage a full-time travelling representative. But that is not the answer.

"A college grows through its own alumni and students. What Sewanee needs is the willingness of her alumni to take the time to convince young men that they should enter The University of the South, to persuade their friends to send their sons to Sewanee.

"Sewanee will never have the student body it should have, Sewanee will never have the applications for admission she should receive until each man who has been a student at Sewanee makes the effort each year to turn the steps of some high school senior to this campus."

Facts and Figures on the Alumni Fund

At the meeting of the Associated Alumni in June, the Vice-Chancellor reported the successful completion of the campaign for the Sustaining Fund. Under the leadership of the Vice-Chancellor, alumni carried the burden of the work of the campaign; they, also, contributed generously of their means. Of more than $500,000.00 pledged, 954 alumni subscribed the sum of $229,309.14. This amount, as it is paid from year to year, together with any other sums contributed annually by alumni to the University, constitutes the Alumni Fund.

For the information of the alumni generally, certain facts and figures in regard to the Alumni Fund are here presented. The final report on the current year will be published in the next issue of the News, together with the names of those alumni who, by a contribution to the Fund, are active members of the Association for 1940. Since the close of the last fiscal year to August 1 of this year, 535 alumni have contributed to the Alumni Fund $39,785.49. Last year 615 alumni contributed the sum of $41,651.49. As a result of the continued campaign in the winter and spring of this year, 194 new subscriptions were secured, totaling $21,300.60. Beside these new subscriptions, increases of former subscriptions were made by 72 alumni, to the sum of $10,028.05.

Attention of the alumni is called to the fact that the fiscal year of the University closes on August 31 and that pledges for the current year are, if circumstances permit, payable before that date. Both for the convenience of the University and that the Alumni Fund may this year reach a new high, subscribers are urged to send in payments at once.

There are still unpaid 1939 subscriptions. It is not too late for these to be paid. Alumni are reminded again of the words of the Vice-Chancellor: "The Sustaining Fund will not preserve Sewanee unless the subscriptions and statements of intent are paid."

The Retiring President of the Association

The gratitude of Sewanee and the Associated Alumni is due to Harding Woodall, retiring President of the association. Mr. Woodall was elected President in 1938 to fill out the unexpired term of Niles Trammell, resigned. A busy man living in New York, Mr. Woodall gave unsparingly his time and his effort to the great responsibility of the Presidency of the Alumni Association. He co-operated in every way with the Vice-Chancellor in the great work of the Sustaining Fund Campaign, and the fine alumni achievement in the success of this campaign is the high mark of his administration. He gives up the Presidency at a time when alumni spirit has reached its highest peak in the seventy-two years of the life of the University.

Mr. Woodall came to Sewanee from Covington, Kentucky. He is a graduate of the Military Academy and received his B.S. degree from the College in 1917. He served in the World War and retired in 1919 with the rank of Captain. He has had a very successful business career and is connected with the firm of Harriman Ripley and Company, Investment Brokers, with offices at 63 Wall Street. His fraternity is Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Of course there was the usual alumni dinner made noteworthy by its Toastmaster, the Hon. Thomas P. Stoney, and even more so by the splendid addresses of Bishop Mikell and Dr. Guerry. Finally there were the German Club dances.

The Baccalaureate sermon was delivered by the Presiding Bishop of the Church, the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, D.D. Dr. Frank Pierrepont Graves, President of the University of New York, made the address to the graduating class, and Messrs. Erskine McKinley and Albert Dade of the class were, respectively, Salutatorian and Valedictorian.

Various medals and prizes for outstanding work were awarded as follows:

The E. G. Richmond Prize for Social Science to Haywood Clark Emerson of North Carolina; the Guerry Medal for English to Bernard Wrigley of Illinois; the Thomas O'Connor Scholarship to Clendon Hunt Lee of Texas; the Lyman Medal for Declaration to Alexander DuBose Juhon of Florida and the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Plaque for character to Theodore DuBose Stoney of South Carolina.

Fifty-one academic and six honorary degrees were conferred. Among the recipients of the latter was Dr. John S. Chipman, now of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and an alumnus of this University.

ATO's Celebrate Sixty-Third Anniversary

The Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity has been represented at Sewanee by its Tennessee Omega Chapter since 1877. In August of that year, John Q. and Wm. S. Lovell, coming to the University from V. M. I. where they had been initiated into the Fraternity, founded the Sewanee Chapter. Wm. S., familiarly known as "Tod", had entered the Sewanee Grammar School in 1872 at the age of eleven. From the Grammar School he had gone to the Virginia institution for a time and then returned to Sewanee.

For some time, the Chapter existed sub rosa, but the high character of its membership finally won for it recognition by the University authorities, and so paved the way for the introduction of chapters of other fraternities, the first of these being Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

It was not until its sixty-third year that Omega Chapter attempted to hold a reunion of its membership, and during the time that had elapsed the ranks of its early initiates had been so decimated that none of the first year's initiates are now living. As a matter of fact, there are left only thirteen of the first seventy-five members. Every effort was made by the promoters of the reunion, this year, to secure the attendance of these but only five of them were able to join the gathering. The oldest of these is Dr. Wm. H. MacKellar, Professor in the University, initiated 1883. He was joined by Rt. Rev. J. C. Morris, 1885, Dr. Benjamin F. Finney, former Vice-Chancellor, 1885, Rev. J. E. H. Galbraith, 1886, and Professor Isaac Ball, 1886, head of the Montgomery Bell Academy, Nashville, Tennessee, for the past twenty-five years. However, these were met by five others who have been members for over fifty years, so that what might be called the old guard of the chapter was fairly well represented. These last were A. S. and W. D. Cleveland, Houston, Texas; Thomas Berry of Rome, Georgia; Dr. R. W. B. Elliott, now of Sewanee, and Nathaniel Heyward of Huger, South Carolina.

To this group might be added the names of eighty-three others who were present on the Mountain for one or more of the four days set for the reunion. These attendants taken altogether, made the gathering a remarkably representative one, since only ten of the fifty years between 1890 and 1940 did not afford delegates.

The whole Mountain fairly outdid itself in extending to the visiting ATO's hearty welcome. The University set apart for them rooms at Quintard and the Inn, and provided them with meals at Magnolia at a nominal cost. The Associated Alumni noted their presence by making Thomas P. Stoney toastmaster at the banquet and electing him Trustee of the University to fill the unexpired term of Colonel Bull. There were numerous parties for small groups given by various residents, and the current Chapter entertained for their older brothers in a reception to all visitors and members of the University community.

A most delightful feature was the reception given at the Cliffs by the Messrs. Cleveland and their wives to all ATO's and their families. Another was the beautiful dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. R. W. B. Elliott to the wives, sisters, and sweethearts of the fraternity. This took place while the masculine element was enjoying a stag, informal dinner at Tuckaway. There was a beautifully executed "Model" initiation by which Mr. J. S. Gresley was inducted into the fraternity, after which the founder of the Chapter, Mr. W. S. Lovell, conferred certificates of membership in the Golden Circle, composed of those who have been members of ATO for fifty years, upon the Rev. J. E. H. Galbraith of Louisville, Kentucky and Mr. Lee Mason of Kerrville, Texas.

Bottom Row: Isaac Ball, Rev. J. E. H. Galbraith, W. H. MacKellar, Rt. Rev. J. C. Morris, Dr. B. F. Finney

Phi Delta Theta Plans Reunion for 1941

Tennessee Beta of Phi Delta Theta will hold a reunion at Commencement in 1941, celebrating the fifty-eighth anniversary of its founding. The News extends this advance notice to all Sewanee Phi's everywhere.

Tennessee Beta was founded at Sewanee in 1883, being the fourth fraternity to enter the University. Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Kappa Sigma are older at Sewanee in the order named. The founders of the chapter were:

William Grover Allen
W. G. A. Aylesworth
James F. Bailey
Alfred L. Hartridge
John H. P. Hodgson
John McH. Robinson
Bridgford Smith

Of these only James F. Bailey is alive. He lives in Columbia, S. C., at 819 Maple Street.

In its fifty-eight years, Tennessee Beta has initiated 504 members. Of these 105 are known to be dead. Many of the alumni who have gone forth from the chapter have achieved distinction in various fields of activity: four Bishops, many distinguished clergy, professional men, and business men represent Tennessee Beta in the world of affairs.

Phi's have been particularly loyal and prominent in the affairs of the University. Twelve members of the Board of Trustees and three members of the Board of Regents are Phi's, as is the newly elected president of the Associated Alumni. Twenty-five or more sons of Phi's have followed their fathers at Sewanee and in the chapter.

In student life Tennessee Beta has always taken a prominent part. Five head proctors in the past eighteen years have been Phi's. The names of thirteen Phi's appear on the rolls of Phi Beta Kappa. In Sewanee's fifty years of football, many famous wearers of the Purple have been Phi's, nine football captains having come from the chapter.

Sewanee looks forward with great interest to this Phi Delta Theta Reunion which promises to make Commencement in 1941 a notable one in Sewanee annals.

A new crisis and a new adversity face the University of the South.

But we must believe that we can make and keep Sewanee so strong within that she will withstand the storms of this crisis and the blows of this or any adversity, and so free from any weakness within which would undermine her strength that she will be indestructible.

We must remove, therefore, as far as possible any weakness within. Defects, errors, and wrong traditions are the weakness within an institution, and the weakness within the University of the South. The most serious mistake an institution makes and that Sewanee has made is to continue its defects and errors year after year, and to maintain wrong traditions often with as much tenacity as fine and right traditions. A man or an institution does one of two things with its defects, errors, and wrong traditions—either rids itself of them or rationalizes them into virtues and keeps and defends them. The first course is the path to victory, the second the path to defeat.

I shall name the defects, errors, and wrong traditions of Sewanee. They are not all peculiar to Sewanee alone. Some of these have been eliminated, some are in process of elimination, and some are still with us. They are or have been our weakness within.

These are (1) lack of financial responsibility and financial accountability, (2) lack of a long-time financial and general program, (3) the habit of shifting responsibility for Sewanee's welfare by each group to the shoulders of another group and often by all groups to the shoulders of one man, (4) destruction and deterioration of property, contradictory to the principle of self-discipline and the principle of economy in operation, (5) too much drinking on the campus and off the campus, contradictory to the principle of self-restraint and very harmful to the good name of the University, (6) hazing that involves physical indignities, (7) too much emphasis on big-time football as a standard by which to measure the merit and worth of an institution of higher education, (8) complacency and inertia, (9) failure to face facts and meet issues, and (10) the idea that "Sewanee has always got along somehow and always will," a philosophy that does not breed courageous, intelligent, or energetic action.

These defects, errors, and false traditions, these weaknesses within, have hurt and handicapped the University of the South and have often brought it to the brink of disaster. The alumni can help remove these weaknesses that still exist, keep away those weaknesses that have been eliminated, and stand off any new weakness that may arise to intrude itself into our life. And these and other weaknesses can be removed or kept away only with the help of Sewanee's alumni.

For example, many alumni have already played an invaluable part in breaking down the error and tradition of destruction of property and in building a new strength and a new tradition in the preservation of property. They have encouraged the students in the preservation of property, praised them for the appearance of buildings, equipment and of campus, urged them to keep up the good work. The splendid condition and appearance today of the whole University plant is due in large part to the influence of alumni.

Strength within for an institution comes not only from removing any weakness within, but also from maintaining and preserving fine ideals and traditions. The great ideals and traditions of a college or university are its chief source of strength. To keep and defend such ideals and traditions, to drive away any weakness that undermines them, is to maintain and preserve an institution, especially in the time of crisis and adversity.

I shall name the great ideals or traditions at Sewanee. To uphold and preserve these is the duty and privilege of every Sewanee man.

The Sewanee spirit, that rare devotion to the University of the South, that devoted love of Alma Mater in many, and I hope most, Sewanee men, which expresses itself not in empty words, but in a true loyalty and a sense of responsibility for Sewanee's welfare.

The tradition of the Sewanee Gentleman, the chivalry in the Sewanee man, the outward form of which is good manners, and the inward spirit of which is respect and consideration for others.

The Honor System of the University of the South, Sewanee's Honor Code, the ideal of trustworthiness for every Sewanee man, that trustworthiness which is one of the great attributes of character, that quality in man which the world so desperately needs and for which the people of this nation and the world so deeply yearn.

The academic ideal of the University of the South, the ideal of fine scholarship, sound learning, and high standards of academic achievement, the ideal of a liberal arts education, of a broad general education, of an education that brings wisdom and understanding, a sense of values, and the discipline of mind and spirit that is one of the guarantees of liberty among the free people of a democracy.

The spiritual ideal of the University of the South, the union of religion and education, the concept of men as the sons of God, of the dignity of life and man, of the reality of spiritual values, and of the nobility of the Christian way of life.

These are Sewanee's great ideals and traditions, the source of her greatness and of the strength that will make and keep her indestructible under the storms of crisis and the blows of adversity. These ideals are the bright stars in Sewanee's firmament. And to quote, "Ideals are like stars. We can never touch them with our hands, but following them as guides, like the seafaring men on deserts of water, we shall reach our destiny."

"Ideals are like stars. We can never touch them with our hands." That means men cannot fully achieve their ideals, that Sewanee shall not realize completely her academic and spiritual ideals, the ideal of the Sewanee gentle-

Frank Morgan, Jr., James Vance, and George William. Frank, Jr., was graduated from the University in 1938. He was prominent in student life and like his father was a Phi and played football. James will be a senior next year; he is a Phi and played on the football teams of 1938 and 1939.

Frank Gillespie has responded to every call for service that has come to him from Sewanee. He has contributed generously to the support of the University. He has been a member of the Board of Trustees from the Diocese of West Texas since 1932. He was the chairman in San Antonio of the committee on the Sustaining Fund. He is the president of the local alumni organization in San Antonio.

As president of the Associated Alumni, he speaks through these columns to Sewanee alumni everywhere:

"I know that every Sewanee alumnus experienced a genuine thrill when the announcement of the completion of the $500,000 Sustaining Fund reached him. And those of us who were able to visit the Mountain at Commencement had the further satisfaction of seeing the remarkable improvements on the campus and of sharing the enthusiasm of the administration and the student body. In my opinion, the high hopes for the future are amply justified but I want to appeal to every alumnus to guard against the mistake of taking for granted the completion of the program without further effort on his part.

"Subscriptions to the Sustaining Fund must be paid, and as the alumni did such a great part of the work in raising this fund, their continued interest must see to it that the installments are kept up during the remaining three years. Then the Sustaining Fund is only one part of the program which has been announced by the Vice-Chancellor. The alumni can, with their united support, just as effectively assist in the succeeding steps of this program. I know that Sewanee can depend upon you.

"My final request is that you do something for yourself. Plan now to visit Sewanee next Commencement. Don't let unsettled conditions spot you. Besides, how better can we meet such conditions than by carrying on? I hope therefore to see our largest alumni gathering next year. Write me that you will be there.

"I am always happy to do something for Sewanee and I deeply appreciate being President of the Alumni Association."

man, or the code of honor and trustworthiness. "But following them as guides we shall reach our destiny." If Sewanee follows her ideals, if Sewanee is loyal to her ideals, if she stands by them and lives by them through and in her sons, she will reach her destiny. And what is Sewanee's destiny? Her destiny is today, as it was in the day of her foundation, in the words of Bishop Polk, to glorify God and to advance the cause of human happiness on earth.

About Sewanee Alumni

NILES TRAMMELL, '18

The National Broadcasting Company's New President

Niles Trammell, NBC's new President, is a real Sewanee man. He is a graduate of the Sewanee Military Academy. After spending four years, 1914-18, in the University, he joined the general exodus of 1918 to enter the army. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. Always a loyal and generous alumnus, he was elected in 1936 President of the Associated Alumni, in which capacity he served for two years, being forced to resign in 1938 because of pressure of business.

To his many friends at Sewanee and elsewhere who remember Niles Trammell the student, we take pleasure in introducing Niles Trammell of 1940, the newly elected president of one of the nation's most distinguished companies, by quoting the following from P. M., July 12, 1940:

NBC's $50,000-a-year president and topkick over its twelve vice-presidents from today on will be 46-year-old Niles Trammell, a charming, gregarious fellow who got his start in radio selling receiving sets on the West Coast. He moves up from a vice-presidency to succeed Lenox R. Lohr, who is going to Chicago to head the Museum of Science and Industry.

Dapper, handsome and extroverted—he answers almost all of his telephone calls, an amazing thing for a network executive—Mr. Trammell is capable and well-liked in the business. A smooth dresser, giving the impression of being meticulous rather than duds, he wears dark, tailor-made double-breasted suits ($150 each) to show off his 5 ft. 10 in., 175-pound frame to best advantage. He is choosy, too, about his barber and manicurist.

Sewanee Spirit of 1939

The News takes pleasure in printing the following letter from Mr. Wallace H. Gage of the Class of 1939. Mr. Gage came to Sewanee from Williamstown, Massachusetts; he is at present a member of the Army Air Corps, stationed at Hickam Field, Honolulu.

The Sewanee Spirit has many moods. We see it in this letter of Mr. Gage in the mood which regards Sewanee as a symbol—a symbol of all that is fine and beautiful in life, a symbol of things so pre-eminently valuable that they are worth fighting for, worth dying for. The younger generations will hear in the words of Mr. Gage their own voice. The older generations will be proud to know that the flame of the true Sewanee spirit burns still on the Mountain.

My dear Professor Gass:

Enclosed is two dollars, my infinitesimal bit for the Alumni Fund. It represents at this stage of the game, however, something to me and therefore a worthwhile offering towards so noble a cause. With the world going rapidly insane, it brings home what Sewanee was really all about—a way of life—which ironically it seems must be fought for in a manner which tears down the very civilization the defense is made for. We lose any way you look at it. Was ever faith blacker or the future so surely dangerous? There is only one light shining and that on the stone cross at the end of the dark road and only one hope in the hearts of men.

Sincerely,

WALLACE H. GAGE, '39

University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn. He guards against a pot belly today by golfing twice weekly at the Deepdaye Country Club, L. I. He also goes up to Canada once a year to fish for muskellunge.

Mr. Trammell, who lives with his wife (no children) on Park Avenue, is just as fussy about his office as his dress. He works ten hours a day, including Sunday, in his teakwood-paneled Radio City office, but never allows his walnut desk to get cluttered up.

He got his radio start as an RCA salesman in 1923, scoring a coup his first year. The city of Seattle owned an outmoded spark transmitter, used for ship communication, which kept local set business down because it interfered with radio reception. Mr. Trammell sicked an army of listeners on the city council, sold it a new $10,000 tube transmitter and mopped up on the increased set business.

Mr. Trammell is the man, incidentally, who as manager of NBC's Central Division, picked Amos 'n' Andy off Station WMAQ in 1929. Two years later he pioneered in soap operas with Clara, Lou and Em. It was his way of evening up the radio talent advantage enjoyed by New York and Los Angeles.

REV. GEORGE HALL, '34

Board of Trustees Elects Rev. George Hall Chaplain

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees on June 7, the Rev. George Hall was elected chaplain of the University.

George Hall returns to Sewanee with the good wishes of a host of friends here and elsewhere to assume one of the most important and responsible posts in our Sewanee life. The chapel is the focal point of the spiritual and religious life of the University and the community. The chaplain has always exercised a profound influence on the life of the student body and the roll of Sewanee chaplains is the roll of some of the most notable figures in the Sewanee tradition: Dr. Francis Shoup, Dr. W. P. DuBose, Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, Bishop W. A. Guerry, Rev. Arthur Gray, Rev. S. L. Tyson, Rev. John Cannon, Bishop Henry Phillips, Rev. Francis Osborne, Rev. Raimundo deOvies, Rev. Moultrie Guerry.

George Hall is a native of Greenville, Mississippi. He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from the College in 1934 and Bachelor of Divinity from the Theological School in 1936. He is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He was for three years a valiant guard on the football team and his scholastic activities received the high reward of membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

On graduation from St. Luke's, George Hall was given a scholarship for graduate work at the General Theological Seminary in New York, from which institution he was awarded the degree of Master of Sacred Theology. He has been for four years assistant at St. Thomas Church, Fifth Avenue, New York.

HARRY P. CAIN, '29

Harry Cain Tacoma's Newly Elected Mayor

Harry P. Cain, '29, is the new mayor of Tacoma, Washington. His election to this position of prominence came as the well-deserved reward of a very active life in the affairs of his city and region.

Immediately upon leaving the University he became associated with the Bank of California in Tacoma, an institution noted among other things for being the only bank in the United States having branches in other states. He served the bank in various capacities down to November, 1939, at which time he held the responsible position of supervisor of the Business and Trust Development Division.

Mayor Cain is a man of diverse interests. For three years, 1933 to 1935, he was president of the Tacoma Golf Association; in 1932-33 he was president of the Young Democrats of Pierce County; in 1937, 1938, and 1939 he was chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Community Chest; in 1936 and 1937 he was managing director of the Tacoma Little Theatre Board; and in 1937 and 1938 he was managing director of the Public Relations Division of the Washington Bankers Association.

In 1939 the state of Washington celebrated its Golden Jubilee. The focal point for the many activities of this colorful celebration was the city of Tacoma and young Harry Cain was given the responsible position of president of this celebration. His successful handling of the various duties of this important assignment brought him so prominently into the public eye that he was able successfully to enter the race for mayor.

Harry Cain had a distinguished career as a student in the University. He was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa, Sopherim, Blue Key. In his senior year he was the editor-in-chief of the Purple.

Francis Craighill, Jr., Rector of Old Bruton Parish

One of America's oldest and most historic churches, old Bruton of Williamsburg, has been restored and rededicated. Part of the restoration project conceived by the late Rev. W. A. R. Goodwin, for many years rector of Bruton Parish, who interested John D. Rockefeller in the plan, the church today stands just as it did in Colonial days. The old brick building in the corner of the churchyard looks today much as it did at the time of the Revolutionary War, when it was already 60 years old. The ivy that has grown for many generations covers the tower where Virginia's Liberty Bell hangs. George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, and Patrick Henry, who worshipped in Bruton Church in their day, would note slight change if they were to return today.

The Rev. Francis H. Craighill, Jr., B.A., '27, B.D., '29, is the present rector of this historic church. Mr. Craighill, who served the first years of his ministry in Georgia and in New York City, went to Williamsburg in 1938. He is the grandson of the late Rt. Rev. F. F. Reese, Bishop of Georgia. His fraternity at Sewanee was Phi Gamma Delta.

Mrs. Preston S. Brooks Dies at Sewanee

Mrs. Preston S. Brooks, the oldest citizen of the University community, died at her home in Sewanee on April 14. Mrs. Brooks, who was before her marriage Miss Maria Porcher Gaillard, came to Sewanee in 1872 from Charleston, South Carolina. She was married in 1878 to the late Preston Smith Brooks of the Class of 1876. With the exception of the first few years, Mrs. Brooks lived her entire married life at Sewanee and in the course of sixty-eight years, she saw and knew almost every generation of Sewanee men.

Three sons were students at Sewanee, Preston Smith Brooks, Jr., '01, Robert Means Brooks, '06, and Louis Porcher Brooks, '07. Three sons-in-law also belong to this all-Sewanee family, the late Ephraim Kirby-Smith, '06, Henry Cortes, '16, and Joseph Eggleston, '16.

Mrs. Brooks is buried beside her husband in the lovely Sewanee Cemetery. Sewanee mourns her death, not only for herself but for the passing from our midst of our last living tie with the old Sewanee.

He was for four years a member of the debate team, in which activity he especially distinguished himself. He is Class Leader of his Class of 1929.

Harry Cain was married in 1934 to Miss Marjorie Eloise Dils. They have one child, Harry, Jr., who was entered in the University immediately upon his arrival in this world. Harry has returned to Sewanee on two occasions since he left in 1929 and he contemplates a visit, with his family, as soon as his arduous duties will allow him a vacation. The Mayor's address is 303 City Hall, Tacoma, Washington.

REV. WOOD B. CARPER, '32

Wood Carper Episcopal Chaplain at Princeton

The Rev. Wood B. Carper, '32, has recently been appointed chaplain to Episcopal students at Princeton University, under the Proctor Foundation.

Wood Carper writes of his new duties as follows:

"The work at Princeton has for the past ten years been firmly established by the Rev. John Crocker who leaves this summer to be the Headmaster at Groton School, succeeding Dr. Peabody. Princeton has an unusually high proportion of Episcopalians in its student body, and has recognized this fact by giving our chaplain unusual privileges in the Princeton Chapel. The University is officially non-denominational, but has allowed the large side-chapel to be consecrated by the Bishop of New Jersey. Daily services are held there, for Episcopalians, in addition to the University chapel services under Dean Wicks, University chaplain.

"Considered as a whole there is probably no college community in America, with the possible exception of Sewanee, in which there is a more favourable atmosphere for the Episcopal Church to work in than at Princeton. I am very happy to have a share in that work."

Wood Carper's record as an undergraduate was unusually distinguished. He was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Blue Key. He was the valedictorian of his class and serves as its permanent class leader.

He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Sewanee in 1932 and, in 1936 the degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology from the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Wood Carper's address, after August 20, will be 53 University Place, Princeton, New Jersey.
