

Meet our Program

We make the power of data science accessible for the greater good by training and supporting a new generation of data scientists and partners, and working together on projects with social impact.

We are a global data science for social good program hosted at Sewanee, and we seek to expand the definition of what it means to be a data scientist.

Sewanee DataLab

We work with undergraduate students, nonprofits, government organizations, academics, and professionals from a wide range of disciplines to understand and use data equitably to benefit those we serve. Join us.
